CARNARVON AID DOOMED SAYS SEER

Howard Carter "Will Soon Be Stricken," Says High Egyptian Church Functionary

Paris, April 6.- "The vengeance of the Pharaohs has been wrought upon Lord Carnarvon. Howard Carter may laugh, but he also will soon be stricken down."

This is the solemn declaration of Ahrehim Cyrana, Egyptian priest, and one of the highest functionaries of the Egyptian church.

Lord Carnarvon, who headed and financed the expedition of archeologists and Egyptologists which explored the Valley of Kings, near Luxor, Egypt, and discovered the tomb of Tutankhamen, Pharaoh of the Exodus, contracted a mysterious and fatal illness soon after entering the ancient tomb. The tomb had been sealed 3,000 years.

CHAPMAN ESCAPES 3RD TIME

Athens, Ga., April 6. (By International News Service.)—Gerald Chapman, million dollar New York mail robber, early today made his third escape in ten days.

Chapman, who was also involved in the Randolph, Mass., bank robbery, was discovered by a nurse in the basement of the Athens General Hospital, where he had hidden himself after escaping from his guarded room on the second floor Wednesday night. The terrified nurse became hysterical and the desperado made his getaway.

He was suffering from serious wounds in the hip, inflicted when he was captured in a running gun battle after his first flight from the Atlanta Penitentiary last week.

Miss Scott, nurse at the hospital, became alarmed by noises in the basement. She notified Deputy Warden Bishop, a guard over another Federal prisoner, and the two went to the basement.

NURSE HYSTERICAL.

"Don't let him get me—don't let him get me," she screamed. A half smile came to Chapman's face.

SEA HERO JUMPS FENCE

Captain Pillsbury, Sued for Divorce, Doesn't Want Picture Taken in Court

Captain Edwin H. Pillsbury of the United States Shipping Board once enjoyed posing in all his gold braid before newspaper photographers, but then came aversion to the camera boys.

In fact, this distaste has grown so strong that today the captain spent an hour running about Roxbury Courthouse and then climbed a five-foot fence in the rear so as to duck cameramen.

The captain was present in Roxbury Court because his wife employed detectives and those inquiring men found the captain and a Miss Maud Berrigan breakfasting together one Sunday while both were en dishabille.

These same detectives learned that the dashing sea hero had occupied an apartment with Miss Berrigan, also known as Alice Mason and had introduced her as Mrs. Pillsbury.

Which is why Mrs. Pillsbury caused his arrest and why she started suit for divorce.

The hearing on the wife's petition will be heard shortly, so the criminal case against the captain was postponed today by Judge Hayden until May 9.

SUGAR BOOST PROBE REPORT UNDER WAY

Washington, April 6.—The tariff commission today began the drafting of a preliminary statement covering the sugar price situation in reply to the President's request for information on that subject.

It was indicated that probably a week would be consumed in getting together certain statistics, which the commission can obtain from government sources.

Educators, Old Chums, Quarrel Over Words of Praise

Worcester, April 6.—Dr. G. Stanley Hall, former president of Clark University, and his long time friend, Dr. Louis N. Wilson, librarian of the university, quarrelled so that Dr. Wilson showed Dr. Hall the library door—in effect, ordered Dr. Hall out.

More extraordinary than this was the cause thereof. Dr. Hall's autobiography, now being written, contained a paragraph highly praising Dr. Wilson. The latter demanded it be eliminated. He shrank from such public praise. Dr. Hall refused. Then the tiff between old chums.

Dr. Hall has since decided to have out the laudatory paragraph which offends Dr. Wilson.

PLEADS GUILTY, BUT JURY SAYS INNOCENT

New York, April 6.—Phillip Cohen, twenty, of Brooklyn, was afraid a jury before Judge Mancuso would find him guilty of criminally receiving stolen property. So he pleaded guilty to avail himself of leniency. The evidence seemed very dark to Cohen.

Judge Mancuso polled the jurors to see what they thought about the case. The result was to find they all thought he was innocent. Cohen was accused of receiving $1,000 worth of stolen radio tubes. He will be sentenced next Wednesday.

BITES WRIST ARTERY IN SUICIDE ATTEMPT

New York, April 6. (By International News Service)—Facing a charge of assault and robbery, Edward Doherty, 27, attempted suicide in his cell today by gnawing the artery in his wrist. He had bitten through the flesh and severed the artery when jailers discovered him.

Police said Doherty, who is a restaurant proprietor, admitted the robbery, explaining that he didn't need the money "but craved excitement."

TWO GIRLS SLASHED TO DEATH

Throats Cut, Bodies Are Hurled From Auto on Lonely Staten Island Road

(By International News Service)

New York, April 6. — The bodies of two bobbed haired young women, their throats slashed with a butcher knife, were found today by a roadside at Garrison, Staten Island, by a milkman.

The victims were identified as Miss Irene Blandino, eighteen, of Jersey City, N. J., and Miss Bessie McMahon, twenty-seven, of Utica, N. Y.

James Blandino, husband of one of the slain women, was questioned by the police, but not detained. He is the owner of a barber shop.

Bronzi Di Lorenzo, a barber employed by Blandino, told detectives that Mrs. Bandino and Miss McMahon, who was visiting her, had not returned to the Blandino home in the rear of the shop since they left early yesterday evening.

He said Blandino had been perturbed because of their absence.

Miss McMahon wore a wedding ring and is believed to have been a married woman also. She was a particularly beautiful girl.

'DEVILS OF DOPE' RACK, SAYS JUANITA HANSEN

Juanita Hansen, whose name a few years ago was emblazoned from Atlantic to Pacific as a motion picture leading woman, continues today her remarkable narrative of life as a narcotic drug fiend.

Her series of articles, which is appearing exclusively in the Boston American, is shocking in its revelations of how narcotic drugs can bring about the downfall of a girl.

It is a story that she begs all sensible people to read and to tell the young folks of the family about, so that they can be saved from the terrible penalty she has had to pay because she became a drug victim.

JEWS SHOT IN RIOT AT WARSAW

Outbreak Follows Protest Against Russian Execution of Prelate

Warsaw, April 6.—Heavy forces of cavalry patrolled the streets of Warsaw today following a violent outbreak in which more than fifty persons were wounded.

The casualties occurred in an anti-Jewish manifestation following a mass meeting to protest the execution of Rev. Mgr. Butchkavitch, Roman Catholic Vicar-General.

Jewish stores were attacked and looted. A crowd of 100,000 tried to storm the Soviet legation, but were held back by soldiers and police. The situation is tense and further outbreaks are expected.

30 Russian Officers Shot as Traitors

London, April 6 (By International News Service) — Thirty Russian army officers were reported today to have been shot at Petrograd after being found guilty of treason.

Six hundred and fifty persons were said to have been arrested in various parts of Russia, some charged with conspiring against the Moscow government, others with complicity in a plot to poison soviet officials. Some of the prisoners already have been deported to Siberia.

Hostages are reported to have been seized who will be liable to execution in the event of Lenine's death.

While no details were given, it is presumed that the hostages were taken from the faction which is suspected of plotting trouble if Lenine dies.

A continuous stream of reports of all kinds are being received here regarding Russian conditions. One was that Lenine was improving; another was that he had died some time ago, and his death was being kept secret.

The report that Leon Trotsky's illness is due to a poison plot persists.

Demands Pope Be Tried as Enemy of Russia

Riga, April 6 (By International News Service).—A Moscow dispatch today quoted the official Bolshevik newspaper Pravda as advocating that Pope Pius XI, head of the Roman Catholic Church, be tried in absentia (that is, with the defendant absent).

The Moscow newspaper asserted that evidence was obtained at the recent trials of Archbishop Zieglax, Vicar-General Butchkavitch and other prelates which showed that the Pontiff at Rome was responsible for the counter-revolutionary activities.

MARTIN E. KERN FINED FOR PERJURY

New York, April 6.—Martin E. Kern, who recently purchased the patents and assets of the Bosch Magneto Co. from the alien property custodian, today pleaded guilty to perjury in representing himself as an American citizen when applying for passports and was fined $2,000 by Federal Judge Goddard. The sale of the Bosch patents to Mr. Kern, Federal officials said, probably would be revoked, as the alien enemy act prohibits the sale of confiscated enemy property to an alien.

CRUSHED TO DEATH IN ICE CONVEYOR

Thomas Mulcahy, fifty-one years old, of No. 225 Allston street, Cambridge, died at the Cambridge Relief Hospital as a result of being crushed in an ice conveyor at the plant of the Neapolitan Ice Cream Company in Cambridge. He was caught in the mechanism by an endless chain.

300 GUESTS FLEE FROM HOTEL FIRE

Hot Springs, Ark., April 6.—Many of the 300 guests at the Arlington Hotel here were carried down ladders by the firemen when a blaze put the elevators out of commission and cut off the stairways.

Many were overcome by smoke, but no one was reported seriously injured. It is believed the fire started in the grill room.

SOCIETY LEADERS INVOLVED

U. S. Grand Jury to Quiz Prominent Citizens in $1,000,000 Liquor Plot

The Federal government today issued 30 subpoenas for as many well-known citizens of Boston, Pawtucket, Newport and other New England cities.

These men will be brought before the Federal Grand Jury on Tuesday to tell what they know about the Million Dollar Conspiracy.

Every person subpoenaed is said to be prominent either because of their financial rating or social connection.

It is charged by the Federal men that information from the men to be brought before the Grand Jury next week will reveal the workings of the greatest bootlegging outfit that has sprung up since prohibition, a clique backed by practically unlimited funds, with ramifications extending to Cuba, Bermuda, Canada and across the Atlantic.

This gigantic ring, the agents allege, has specialized in trade with wealthy men and exclusive clubs, selling only the best grades of booze.

It is reported that the British steamer Avontown, which last week that George Tchitcherin, Commissar for Foreign Affairs, has fallen ill and that his sickness is developing into a dangerous malady. According to this dispatch Litvanoff has succeeded Tchitcherin as head of Foreign Office.

Anti-semitic rioting has broken out in Ukrania following the violent disorders when protests were made against the forthcoming trial of Metropolitan Tikhon of the Russian Orthodox church. The religiously inclined peasants are insisting that the Rev. Tikhon be liberated and to enforce this request they attacked Red troops.

Death sentences were pronounced upon several important government employes today after they had been found guilty of accepting bribes.

A. Tomsky, head of all Russian labor unions, said he was sending an invitation to Eugene V. Debs to visit Russia and that similar invitations would be sent to members of the American Workingmen's League.

340 Slain in Ukraine for Vicar Protests

By Associated Press.

Berlin, April 6.—Serious conflicts in the Ukraine between Bolshevist troops and peasants are reported in dispatches received here by way of Lemberg.

The Bolshevik are declared to have executed 340 peasants, apparently because of protests against the Soviet prosecution of high church dignitaries.

Anti-Jewish pogroms are reported from the Ukraine and many Jewish families are said to be fleeing toward the Polish frontier.

Russian Reds Shoot 200 in Georgian Massacre

London, April 6.—Wholesale execution are being carried out by the Russian Communists in Georgia in an attempt to wipe out the country, it was charged by the Georgian representatives here today.

Bolsheviks shot 200 persons and seized 21 of the most prominent citizens as hostages. Georgia is one of the new republics created on the fringe of Soviet Russia. It is in the Caucasus and was formerly a part of the old Russian Empire.

WEDDING PARTY MAY BLOW AUTO HORNS

Washington, April 6.—Wedding parties, in the opinion of the District of Columbia Police Commissioner, should not be held to the decorous standards of street traffic regulations. The Commissioner ordered the release "in time to catch their train" of Edward Dean and his bride, after they had fallen into the clutches of an unromantic traffic policeman, who took exception to the tinpan din and excessive horn blowing, and escorted their entire wedding party to the police station.

"That's just foolishness," the Commissioner told the policeman. "Most people only get married once, and they ought to be free to celebrate it."

27 HURT IN TRAIN WRECK IN IOWA

Marshalltown, Iowa, April 6.—Twenty-seven persons were injured, three probably seriously, in a wreck of a Minneapolis Kansas City passenger train, on the Chicago, Great Western, three miles east of this city.

Priests Chose Death to Forsaking Faith Before Red Court

Moscow, April 6.—The trial of Vicar-General Butchkavitch, Archbishop Zepliak and sixteen Roman Catholic priests by the Soviet, which resulted in the execution of Mons. Butchkavitch and prison terms for the others, was a mockery of justice and a hideous farce of jurisprudence.

Details of the memorable trial made known today reveal facts which illuminate the weird and bloody political nightmare through which Russia struggles. The world has become accustomed to stories of inhuman brutality committed in time of war, during moments of passion, when hate has free play and prejudice is unbridled.

But here was the session of a court, with counsel for the defense, a prosecutor and three judges—a court hearing presumed to be held along approved parliamentary lines.

SPECTACLE OF CRUELTY.

The judges, the prosecutor, the wolfish spectators, were not there to give justice. They were gathered there like cats playing with mice. There is no doubt, in view of what occurred, that the verdict of the judges was written before the trial began; that the court hearing was a spectacle of cruelty rather than a mounting of justice.

Two factors stand out—the beast-ly blood-lust of the prosecutor, Krylenko, and the dignity and heroism of the churchmen in the dock. Most of them were old men—several, including the archbishop, had reached the age of seventy years. The whole affair seemed to be a throwback to the days when the Christian martyrs met death as punishment for their faith.

TO CRUSH OUT RELIGION.

There seems to be no doubt that the trial of the Catholic priests was simply an incident in the campaign of the Soviet to kill religion in Russia.

Here are the crimes of which the prelates were convicted and which one of them—Butchkavitch—was stood up against a wall and shot to death:

Each of the prisoners confessed to the heinous crime of teaching children the catechism. They further affirmed that they intended to continue to do this.

Each of the priests confessed to saying mass. They purposed to continue to say mass.

Each of the priests confessed to discussions held at various times at which various laws were taken up—the new divorce law, the law of separating church and State, the law separating church and school and other decrees of the Soviet. No political action was taken or planned by the priests, the evidence showed. They were merely discussions.

Krylenko conducted his side of the case as though it were a farce, rather than a tragedy. The merriment in his eyes faded only when it was replaced by a hatred that called for the blood of the prisoners. In marked contrast was the dignity, the grace, the simple courage with which the prelates conducted themselves.

ACCUSED AS PLOTTERS.

The defense proposed that the series of incidents charged by the prosecution be taken up separately, each on its merits. Krylenko objected, insisting that they were part of a general counter revolutionary conspiracy against the Soviet government.

The judges upheld his point. They made it clear that any men who meet together to discuss in a critical manner the decrees of the Soviet government are counter revolutionists.

During a service a couple of the Red army entered and ordered the congregation out. One of the accused priests was officiating. He was kneeling at the time before the blessed sacrament, after he had finished mass. It was charged that his action in falling upon his knees was an appeal to the religious fanaticism of the people, and, therefore, a crime in the eyes of the Bolshevik government.

The priest was sentenced to ten years for this crime.

The archbishop made a speech from the dock. He said he had confined all his efforts to teaching his people the truths of their holy religion, those same truths which the church has taught for twenty centuries. He said:

ACCEPT FATES BRAVELY.

"Today I stand before a temporal judge. Tomorrow, perhaps, I shall stand before the Eternal Judge. I hope the temporal judge is just to me, and the Eternal Judge merciful."

The death sentence was passed on Archbishop Zepliak and Vicar-General Butchkavitch at midnight on Palm Sunday. They received it with smiling faces, as though it were a reprieve rather than an edict of death.

"Not my will, but thine," was the concluding sentence in the speech of Edward Yunevitch, the youngest of the accused priests.

Following the death sentence, an indescribable scene took place. Women in the audience screamed in hysteria and fainted, falling on the floor. Soldiers of the Red Republic dragged them out like beasts. In the street extraordinary military precautions were taken to prevent a demonstration.

EGYPTIAN SAYS CARTER IS DOOMED

amen, scoffs at the idea that Lord Carnarvon fell under the curse of the gods of Egypt. He expressed determination to carry out the plans of the expedition in accordance with Lord Carnarvon's desires.

"This is not the first time that sacrilegious explorers have been slain by their own temerity," declared Cyrane, as he predicted the death of Carter.

"Each tomb of a Pharaoh bears an inscription called the "seal of execration," foretelling a terrible death for the disturbers of the Pharaoh's sleep. I am certain Lord Carnarvon did not read these hieroglyphics, or he would not have continued.

"As it was, he withdrew at the very threshold of the tomb, but not before the harm had been done and the sacrilege committed.

"Other explorers avoided the curse of the gods of Egypt by the scrupulous observances of the Egyptian ritual," he said. "They hired priests to chant for twenty-four hours before the tombs were opened, and in that manner appeased the wrath of the gods.

NO INVOCATION.

"But Lord Carnarvon scoffed at our gods—if not by word, at least by his actions. He used the tomb as an occasion for shameful commercial publicity. There was no prayer, no invocation—nothing but obscene pillage, impure traffic and shameful curiosity.

"All who have studied Egyptology, learning of the marvelous civilization existing in Egypt 3,000 years ago, will not be surprised at the sudden and mysterious death of Lord Carnarvon.

"Nor will they be surprised when Howard Carter meets the same fate at the hands of the gods of Egypt. He is doomed as surely as was John the Baptist when Salome danced for Herod."

Mosquito Caused Death of Explorer, Press States

London, April 6.—"Lord Carnarvon went to Luxor on March 6. Two days later, when in the Valley of the Kings, he was bitten on the right cheek by, it is believed, a mosquito. He paid no attention to the bite, and the following day took off the scab while shaving.

"The wound became infected. Possibly by dust or probably from a fly. A slight swelling followed in the glands. At Cairo on March 17 erysipelas developed."

This is the explanation of Lord Carnarvon's fatal poison insect bite as made by the London newspapers.

A little incident which shows that Lord Carnarvon collapsed and died suddenly was the fact that just before death he felt so much improved that he sent for a barber and had a shave and a haircut.

Gold Statuette Richest of Carnarvon's Treasures

London, April 6 (By the Associated Press).—The disposition of the late Lord Carnarvon's antiques has become a question of public interest. They include many rarities of all periods purchased at very high prices. The gem of the collection is said to be a portrait statuette of Thothmes III., found in Egypt during the war by native excavators. Carnarvon paid thousands of pounds for the little treasure. It is about seven inches in height and is of solid gold. It dates back to approximately 1500 B. C.

Whether the Earl disposes of his collection in his will is unknown, but the hope is expressed he may have bequeathed it to the nation. The possibility of it being sold is also suggested.

BRAIN POISONED, GIRL TALKS 10 DAYS

Columbus, O., April 6. (By International News Service).—Physicians at the Sawyer Sanitarium at Worthington, near here, today were puzzled over the strange malady of Mrs. William Montgomery, twenty-two, of Logan, O., admitted to the sanitarium after an attack of "talking sickness" following influenza.

According to her physician, Mrs. Montgomery has talked incessantly for ten days. She has a high fever and is extremely restless. Physicians believe that poison from the disease had attacked her brain.

30 SUMMONED IN RUM RING INQUIRY

unlonded hundreds of cases of excellent whiskey off Block Island, is one of the principal rumners for the ring.

Some of the names on the summonses issued today resulted. It is understood, from lists discovered by Federal agents after the recent arrest of Mrs. Lena Costello, wife of James Costello, in her apartment on Commonwealth avenue, Allston, and the arrests of Abraham Gildberg and David Perlo.

Mrs. Costello, Perlo and Goldberg pleaded not guilty before Federal Commissioner Hayes today to charges of conspiracy to smuggle liquor into the United States. They were held for continued hearing Friday, April 13.

When the cases of Mrs. Costello and the two men were continued today their counsel, ex-Assistant United States Attorney Shea, asked for reduced bail. Commissioner Hayes said that, from information he had received, the alleged conspiracy extended over quite a period, was operated on a large scale and involved considerable money.

Shea argued that these points, if established, could not change the maximum penalty. But the commissioner differed, saying that the charges might involve many overt acts on each of which defendants, if convicted, might be sentenced. So the same bail was required, $7,500 for Mrs. Costello and $10,000 each for the men.

Ghosts? Poison? No, A Bug
A Dead Heart Beats
The Sun Our Best Doctor
By Arthur Brisbane

SECRETARY MELLON of the Treasury, a financial genius well chosen by the President, tells you that business is good, manufacturers and railroads expanding their facilities. "Every blast furnace in the Pittsburgh district is blowing for the first time in a number of days. The Carnegie Steel Company is operating at 99 per cent. of capacity. Other big plants are running near a maximum."

That's encouraging now, and it comes from a man who understands what he discusses.

Romance attends such a death, and breaks out in various ways. The native Egyptians are afraid to go near the tomb now to continue their work. They think ancient poisons are there to kill intruders. Money will restore their courage.

CONAN DOYLE, who sees spirits in stones and ghosts in the running brooks, is sure that ghosts defending the old tomb caused the death of the English lord.

What about those that have broken into a thousand other tombs in Egypt, for a thousand years past? Were the ghosts asleep?

The bite of a poisonous insect, causing blood poisoning, followed by pneumonia, killed Carnarvon.

ADRENALIN INJECTED into the tissues of the heart has, undoubtedly, revived those pronounced dead by surgeons, and that actually were dead, and would have stayed dead had not the adrenalin been injected. Dr. Crile of Cleveland deserves the honor of this discovery.

Adrenalin is extracted from small glands, one located above each of the kidneys. Those glands, of use unknown until recently, control the blood supply and the heart's action. So great is their power that they can force a heart that has stopped to begin beating again. Science hasn't reached the end of its journey.

OF ALL CURES the best is sunshine. In a "sun sanitarium" in the Alps many cures of consumption are reported.

Protect the top of the head, however, against actinic rays when the sun is hot. A hat, white on the outside, black or dark green inside, is best. The happiest creature in the hot sun is a man with a black skin, wearing a white robe. The robe keeps off the heat rays, the black skin keeps out the actinic rays.

A real sun cure means walking in the sunshine naked, except for protection on the skull. Exposing the whole body to the sunlight causes blood pressure to fall. The breathing becomes deeper and slower, the amount of air inhaled greater and the strain on the heart less.

Sunshine on the skin expands the little capillary veins, bringing blood to the surface, which is good for the surface and good for the blood, increasing both red and white blood corpuscles, the protective army of our blood system.

THE BEST exercise for human beings would be walking up and down in the sunlight with no clothing on except a white hat with a crown lined with black. However, modesty is more valuable even than sunlight. So there must be a compromise.

IT IS announced from Washington that the President "will force his fight for the world's court." If he does he will conduct a fight against his re-election for the presidency. The world court, as Lord Cecil said when he arrived here, is only a branch of the League of Nations.

LORD CECIL, admirable gentleman, makes a good fight for his country, the British empire. But he has not helped the League of Nations in America

SHOTS FIRED AT RESCUER, GIRLS SAY

MARCELLA AND GERMAINE MEYER
Jamaica Plain girls who charge they were attacked by two Readville youths while riding in an auto. One of the boys, Arthur Lehman, has been indicted. The other boy named in the case is his cousin, William.

YOUTH INDICTED FOR ATTACK ON SISTERS

Arthur Lehman, twenty, of No. 77 Hinsdale road, West Roxbury, has been indicted by the Norfolk County Grand Jury for attacking eighteen-year-old Germaine C. Meyer of No. 19 Grosvenor road, Jamaica Plain.

The indicted youth and his cousin, William, twenty-three, of No. 22 Lakeside avenue, Readville, met Germaine and her sister Marcella, on Christmas night to take them for a ride. They went from Jamaica Plain to Milton.

There, the girls claim, the boys attacked them. William Holgren, caretaker of the Forbes estate, where the alleged assault occurred, interfered and one of the two boys is said to have fired several shots to scare him away. The girls fled.

FIND CHAPMAN; GONE AGAIN

cal nurse. Her excitement seemed increased by his effort to reassure her. No one seemed to have any fears for further trouble from Chapman. "He looked too much like a dead man," Miss Scott explained.

In the confusion, Chapman quietly started up the stairs. Miss Scott went with him, while Bishop remained with the hysterical nurse. Miss Scott told him he better let her put him to bed, his condition was so apparently on the edge of collapse.

"I believed he had made up his mind to go with me quietly," the nurse said later. "He looked so tired and helpless and there was such a longing for sleep in his eyes."

SEES FREEDOM.

Then "the man who would not stay captured" caught sight of the open door, beyond it—freedom.

"I'd better not. I'd better not. Thank you, though," the convict told Miss Scott. He braced his shoulders, summoned his remaining strength and dragged his wouldbe form out of the building, while the nurse stood watching him. She made no outcry, just watched him.

"I watched him until he had reached the end of the walk," she said later. "I was sure that he would abandon his plan of escape as soon as he realized how frightfully weak he was.

"When he reached the end of the walk, I saw him plunge into some shrubbery and lost sight of him. I started, and rushed to notify Mr. Bishop."

The hospital grounds were searched at once. There was no trace of Chapman.

Athens police immediately made a search of the neighborhood. With the return of daylight the hospital grounds and vicinity again were secured.

Hospital physicians said they believed "the man who would not stay captured" was either dead or unconscious by now. They said he could not have the strength to continue his flight from Athens.

3 DETECTIVES GUARD 'GERRY' IN NEW YORK

New York, April 6.—When Geraldine Farrar arrived here from Philadelphia, with three detectives guarding her in her private car, she faced the unpleasant possibility of having every detail of her divorce against Lou Tellegen brought out before a jury.

Heretofore, the case has been heard in the comparative secrecy of a referee's hearing, with only the names of the co-respondents being made known. Now, however, Judge O'Malley, of the Supreme Court, has granted a stay of his order refusing Miss Stella Larrimore, one of the co-respondents, the right to have the charges against her heard before a jury.

Miss Larrimore has been Tellegen's leading lady in his vaudeville sketch this season.

Judge O'Malley ordered a delay until April 20, and before that time it is believed, Lou Tellegen will have returned to New York to aid Miss Larrimore's fight to prove that the testimony of Miss Farrar's detectives was not true. These men told the referee, among other things, that they had seen Miss Larrimore and Tellegen "petting" for long periods in her vestibule.

Tellegen is now playing in New Orleans, but he notified Louis Brodsky, attorney for Miss Larrimore, that he would be glad to come to New York to defend her name.

METHODISTS SCORE EMBASSY DRINKING

Washington, April 6.—A strong protest to Secretary Hughes against the use of spirituous liquors in embassies and consulates by foreign representatives accredited to the United States will be made during the Baltimore conference here of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Secretary Hughes

The attitude of the conference cannot be gauged accurately in advance, but in view of an attack on "tippling diplomats" by Rev. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the board of temperance, it was regarded as practically certain that the resolution would pass.

"We could if we chose, and we will in time, ask the foreign governments to recall any man who can't get along without his wine," declared Dr. Wilson.

DRIVER'S HAIR SINGED BY BLAZING TRUCK

Joseph P. McElaney was backing a truck into the Dodge Service Garage at No. 54 East Concord street, South End, today when flames burst from the hood. McElaney's hair and eyebrows were singed as he tried to beat out the flames. Firemen took over the job for him, keeping the damage down to $25. The truck is owned by Joseph McCabe of No. 43 Sharon street, South End.

PACIFISTS 'ENEMIES OF U. S.'

Weeks Calls Them Foes of Republic and Associates of Communists

Washington, April 6.—Pacifist propagandists and organizations in the United States were denounced as public enemies today by Secretary Weeks in a statement made public by the War Department.

Americans would do well, the statement said, "to inform themselves of the facts and to examine into the character and patriotism of those who are promoting the pacific campaign before taking a step that may readily align them with the enemies of the republic."

RAILS FALSE FIGURES.

Widespread circulation of incorrect and misleading statistics, Mr. Weeks said, had been accomplished by pacifist agencies, including "those forces in America who are preaching revolution and the establishment of a communistic government and also those who seem to believe that any army or navy is unnecessary."

Uninformed but patriotic citizens, it was added, are lending themselves to reduce if not destroy the military safeguards of the nation as a result of pacifist propaganda.

"If there can be any different degree of responsibilities among citizens for the observance of law, men of such influential circles as these should be considered even more guilty than those of whom society expects less.

"If by their example in the nonobservance of this particular law, there shall develop a lack of regard for other laws—a lack of regard upon the part of others for the laws upon which these men depend for their large interests, they could not be surprised in the break down of the governmental fabric—and whose fault, if property, happiness and prosperity would be so great as theirs?"

DENOUNCES BULLETIN.

"Typical of the material that is being used in this, what seems to me to be a dangerous campaign," the Secretary continued, "is the following, which appeared in a recent bulletin of an organization calling itself the National Council for the Prevention of War, which has its headquarters in Washington:

"The officially-prepared chart enclosed shows that we are allowing one-fifth of our budget for 1924 for the army and navy. More than 85 per cent. of that budget will go for past and future wars."

Secretary Weeks said the chart carried a legend stating that it had been prepared by the Federal Bureau of Efficiency from the budget report submitted to Congress by President Harding in December, 1922.

"This government is not and never has been spending 85 per cent. of its budget for military purposes," Mr. Weeks declared.

QUOTES LAST BUDGET.

"The budget report of December 4, 1922, in a comparative tabular statement numbered 9, shows that approximately a lesser amount of the annual budget is being expended for the national defence now than in the fiscal year 1915. In the latter year, 24.8 per cent. of appropriations actually made for the national defence for the fiscal year 1924 were 13.5 per cent. of the total.

"It is an important fact that the pacifists erect the figure of 85.5 as a means of propaganda only. When they come to urging their views on Congress, they concentrate their entire effort on the purpose represented by the figure of 13.5 per cent for national defense. Never do they suggest means for reducing the public debt charges or the pension and veterans' bureau expenditures. All that they seek to eliminate is the relatively small expenditure for military defense of the country."

Widow of "T. R." Is Heroine

MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT

New York, April 6.—While fifty other patrons fled before the clouds of smoke, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt calmly directed employes in saving two oil paintings of her late President-husband after fire broke out in the "Double R" coffee house in West Forty-fourth street.

The two paintings are featured in the coffee house of which her son, Kermit Roosevelt, is a part owner.

Fire started in a coffee roaster in the kitchen and spread rapidly. Mrs. Roosevelt refused to leave until the employes had secured canvasses and covered the paintings.

FIND BODIES OF SLAIN GIRLS

and it is not believed they had been dead more than an hour. The bodies, fashionably clothed, were found on opposite sides of the road in a clump of underbrush.

In the grass near one of the bodies the knife was found.

No blood stains were found on the ground and police believe they were murdered elsewhere and their bodies thrown from an auto.

THROATS OF VICTIMS CUT.

Both women, besides having their throats cut, had big gashes cut down their back between their shoulder blades. The wrist of the blonde woman had been cut.

The place where the bodies were found is an exclusive section, but thinly settled, and is the rendezvous of bootleggers and joyriders. Nearby a creek trickles its way to the bay, affording just enough water to float small crafts of rum smugglers.

Walter J. Donovan, the milkman who found the bodies, was taking a short cut back to his dairy about daylight when he found the body of one girl.

He looked around and on the other side of the road, found the body of the other victim. He leaped into his wagon and drove to the Stapleton police station, where he reported the tragedy.

Acting Inspector Cornelius Colgrane went to the scene, accompanied by detectives from the Homicide Squad. Captain of Detectives E. L. Von Wagener assumed charge of the case and twenty detectives were assigned to assist him.

He immediately ordered every exit from the island guarded on the theory the murderers might still be near.

The district attorney also sent a representative to the scene.

Donovan, while not under suspicion, is held near the scene so he can be questioned from time to time.

BODIES ARE IDENTIFIED.

Identification of the bodies was made by means of an artificial limb used by Mrs. Blandino. In her pocket was found a receipt for the limb.

It was from John N. Eschen of New York, dated March 28 and $55 was still due on the original bill of $112.50.

Detectives questioned Eschen who said:—

"Mrs. Blandino came into my place for an adjustment Saturday. I remember noting that it was the first time in more than a year I have known her that she ever came here without her husband.

"Her hair was dark brown, as I remember her, and she was rather pretty."

Eschen said Mrs. Blandino first came into his shop about a year ago in answer to an advertisement and had been in many times since to get minor adjustments. He said she did not appear worried when he saw her Saturday.

Evidence of fresh marks from automobile tires and no signs of a struggle at the scene of the finding, strengthens the police theory that the young women were killed before they were brought to the place. Their hats were found several feet from the bodies.

The nearest house to the spot where the bodies were found by Donovan is 400 yards. There are many places in a radius of several miles where the murder could have been committed with little danger of crics being heard.

U. S. SOLDIER BEATEN AND ROBBED

Knocked Out in North End Alley; Two Youths Arrested After Chase

Private Charles Blanchard of Camp Devens walked down Hanover street today wearing a brand new uniform and with $80 in his pocket.

Two men leaped from an alley, seized him by the throat and dragged him back in. He fought desperately. They knocked him unconscious.

A woman, hearing sounds of the scuffle, opened a window and began screaming.

Patrolmen Curry and Carella, nearby, responded to the alarm. They chased two men to Commercial street and thence to Charlestown Bridge.

Booked at Station 1 they gave the names of Joseph Sacco of Prince street and Charles Varra of Prince street. They were held by Judge Parmenter today on bail of $2,000 each for appearance May 1.

Blanchard was picked up and taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital where his condition was found to be serious. He will recover.

BOY SOLOIST NEWCOMER IS LOST TO BOSTON

Brent Curtis

Brent Curtis, the boy soloist with the "wonder voice," for four years a singer at Trinity Church, has been lost to Boston. By an agreement with the famous Grace Church in New York, he will be cared for by the church and given a college education. Brent, who is fourteen years old, is the son of E. M. Curtis, a druggist, of No. 84 Fairview avenue, Belmont.

Critics say that he has a range of three octaves to "a good ringing high D above the staff" with a voice of brilliant power. His singing at the Associated Industries banquet to Charles Schwab at the Copley Plaza last November greatly impressed the steel magnate, who is believed to be back of the Grace Church engagement. He is the highest paid boy soprano in the United States.

Flogged By Klan in Georgia

MRS. F. A. PEACE AND L. L. BRIGHT
Photos By International News Reel

Macon, Ga., April 6.—Masked Klansmen kidnaped Mrs. Frederick A. Peace, No. 427 Port Washington avenue, New York City, and Lynwood L. Bright, of this city, and flogged Bright in the presence of the woman, near the negro quarter of the city.

The flogging is said to have been administered because Klansmen resented the introduction of a negro witness by Bright in obtaining a divorce from Mrs. Bright recently. Mrs. Peace was named co-respondent by Mrs. Bright.

Bright was given twenty-four hours in which to leave the city. The woman was not molested, other than being bound and gagged, and forced to witness the brutal treatment of her escort.

ELOPING COUPLE ARE BALKED BY GIRL'S MOTHER

Springfield, April 6.—Pasquale Boenzo was whispering sweet nothings in the ear of Cora Lammoureaux of No. 23 Arthur street, Worcester, as the train jerked to a stop in Springfield Union station.

Pasquale was planning details of the wedding that was to have been held today when a hitch loomed before them and, in a moment, both were shivering outside on the platform.

Mrs. Harriet Lammoreaux, Cora's mother, suspected their plans and so notified the police when her daughter failed to appear at midnight. They called Springfield.

While Cora was held pending the arrival of her parents, Pasquale was telephoning excitedly to Worcester City Hall to learn Cora's age. She says she is twenty-one.

Pasquale declares that if he can verify the girl's statement that she is of age he will go ahead with his marriage plans. She is a student at Clark University, Worcester.

New Process Declared to Insure Cheaper Product for Consumers

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 6.—The grip which has been tightly held by Standard Oil Companies over the gasoline industry is loosened for the first time today. As a result the supply of gasoline will be increased, and this may result in lowered gasoline prices.

Following the compromise effected in the lawsuit among three gasoline producing companies — the Texas Company, the Standard Oil of Indiana and the Gasoline Products Company, over alleged infringement of the "cracking process" for producing gasoline from crude oil, more companies will become refiners of crude petroleum, thus increasing the supply.

Heretofore, by controlling the cracking process, the Standard Oil Company practically controlled gasoline prices, because this process would produce more gasoline than any other and thus prices established by Standard Oil dominated the market.

But along came the "Cross patents," controlled by the Gasoline Products Co. This was even more efficient than the Burton process, controlled by Standard Oil of Indiana. The Gasoline Products Co. began leasing the process to Independents. This threatened to put the Standard Oil of Indiana and the Texas Co. at a disadvantage. Hence the compromise.

As a result of the compromise many independent oil companies have flocked to the Gasoline Products Co. for lease of the Cross process.

The British freighter Competitor was last reported at Searsport, Me., on March 30, after a voyage from Port Talbot, Wales. She was under command of Captain Baum.

OLD ROMANCE IS BARED BY LADY NORTHCLIFFE

Paris, April 6.—A romance fifteen years old is revealed in the marriage of Sir Robert Hudson and the former Lady Northcliffe, who passed through this city today on their way to Italy, where they will pass their honeymoon.

Sir Robert, a widower since 1895, and Lady Northcliffe, it is said, have been in love since 1908. The late Lord Northcliffe, a famous publisher, knew the facts and never travelled without taking Sir Robert and Lady Northcliffe with him.

He repeatedly offered to permit himself to be divorced so Lady Northcliffe could marry Sir Robert, but the wife refused because of her social ambitions and fear of scandal.

Throughout his last illness Lord Northcliffe used to have Sir Robert and Lady Northcliffe at his bedside daily and would insist upon their joining hands. His last words, five days before his death, were a request that the couple should marry within one month from the time of his funeral.

Although they promised to humor the dying man they waited much longer. Lady Northcliffe received about $3,000,000 in settlement of her claims under the will.

Washington, April 6 (By International News Service).—The retail cost of food decreased in fifteen out of twenty-five representative cities in the United States between Feb. 15 and March 15, the Department of Labor announced today. Increases in food costs were reported in ten cities.

The decreases during the period were one per cent. in Columbus, O., Dallas, Tex., Denver, New Orleans, St. Paul, Seattle and Washington, D. C., and less than half of one per cent. in Baltimore, Fall River, Little Rock, Louisville, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Richmond, Va., and Rochester, N. Y.

The increases were one per cent. in Jacksonville, Fla., Manchester, N. H., Omaha, Neb., Portland, Me., and Salt Lake City, and less than one-half of one per cent. in Boston, Cleveland, Newark, New Haven and Scranton.

For the period from March 15, 1922, to March 15, 1923, the Bureau of Labor statistics reported a five per cent. increase in Boston.

Comparisons with the year 1913, the Bureau stated, showed that retail food prices had increased during the last ten years at rates ranging from 22 per cent. in Salt Lake City to 63 per cent. in Richmond, Va.

HAYNES HITS AT MOONSHINE BUYERS

New York, April 6.—The attitude of persons in high social and professional position who tacitly sanction violation of the prohibition laws by purchasing bootleg liquor is a matter for serious thought, Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes so declared in an address today before the New York Methodist Episcopal conference.

"These citizens," Commissioner Haynes said, "seem not yet to have realized that only one question is involved in prohibition law enforcement, viz: 'Are you for or against the constitution of the United States?'

"It is not to be wondered at that bootleggers and criminals will violate the law for the sake of possible illegal gains, but it is difficult to understand how prominent clubmen, business and professional men become parties to such violations.

Commissioner Haynes declared there was a "vigilance, a fixed purpose, an unrelenting spirit, organized and equipped today" to support enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Census bureau statistics, Mr. Haynes said, showed that the death rate per 1,000 in New York State from alcoholism decreased from 6.4 in 1917, the last full year before the Prohibition Amendment became effective, to 2.9 in 1919 and 1.2 in 1920.

Figures also were cited by Mr. Haynes showing that the average number of arrests for drunkenness in twenty-six cities in New York State, including New York City, in the years 1918 and 1920, decreased 54 per cent. from the average number for the two years 1916 and 1917. The decrease in New York City, he said, was 42 per cent.

OFFER $1,000 BRIBE IN BIG RUM SEIZURE

Attleboro, April 6.—A proffered bribe of $1,000, followed by the plea to "name his price," when it was rejected, was offered Deputy Sheriff John H. Nerney in connection with the seizure of 250 cases of imported whiskey which were seized by the deputy and a posse of dry officers.

The liquor was seized at the home of John Dunceski of Seekonk and was removed to Bristol County, where it was believed the contraband could be more safely kept.

The identity of the persons who offered the bribe are said to be known.

FORD BUYING TO AID COTTON

The recent three-cent recession in raw cotton and the general wage advance throughout New England have brought about a distinct hesitation in cotton goods. Not only has the former brisk buying fallen off but prices show a decline of about 5 per cent. on standard lines. Sales at Fall River which a month ago were running around 200,000 pieces, or approximately full production, will not be more than 80,000 pieces this week.

An encouraging feature, however, is the entrance of Henry Ford into the market for something like 15,000,000 yards of top and curtain material. Already a fair proportion of this business has been placed. The Ford buying is for early Summer delivery. It is estimated that the bill for the Ford purchases will total close to $6,000,000. Other automobile manufacturers, notably Buick, are inquiring for substantial lots of goods.

A large commission house merchant says: "Last Fall when business was dull it was Ford's buying for Spring delivery that started the market going again. That history will repeat itself at this time is very likely."

102,683 POPULATION CLAIMED FOR LYNN

Estimates of the Federal census bureau give Lynn a population of 102,683. The figures are based on the 1920 Federal returns and estimated growth since that time. Lynn then had 99,148 residents.

BACON AND EGGS CLOSE GLORIA'S PARTY AT DAWN

New York, April 6.—One of the most brilliant social affairs of the season in New York society, a dance to announce the engagement of Miss Gloria Gould, seventeen-year-old daughter of George J. Gould, to Henry A. Bishop, Jr., of Bridgeport, Ct., came to an end at dawn today.

More than 350 persons attended the event at Sherry's. Dancers from the Metropolitan Opera Company furnished an attractive feature. Potted flowers were brought especially from Florida.

The menu was: Supreme de fruits; bouchees de bonard nantua; filet de volaille pascal; fruits a la Sherry, friandises and cafe.

As the dance ended, bacon and eggs, rolls and coffee were served. No date has been set for the wedding.

ROXBURY GIRL CROWNED 'MISS INSURANCE'

Miss Frances E. Drew of No. 2 Centre street, Roxbury, employed with the Employers' Liability Insurance Company, was chosen "Miss Insurance" at a beauty contest in the Normal Art School gymnasium. Four hundred girls employed in various Boston insurance offices competed for the honor of being judged the prettiest girl.

It was not until the contest had narrowed down to three girls from the American Mutual Insurance Company and Miss Drew that a decision was made.

Miss Drew was presented with a loving cup, the gift of the insurance offices of the Boston Basketball League.

Miss Drew, who formerly lived at No. 148 Magazine street, Cambridge, is a graduate of Cambridge Latin School. She has taken part in amateur theatricals, is studying dancing and aspires to be a professional.

ARLINGTON COP HURT BY 'L' CAR

Patrolman James J. Flynn of the Arlington police department was severely bruised about the hips, back and shoulders when hit by a Boston Elevated car while directing traffic at Massachusetts avenue near Lake street today.

DRY AGENTS SHOOT WAY THROUGH MOB

New York, April 6.—After a crowd of several hundred persons had attacked them while they were raiding a garage in the upper East Side, two prohibition agents fought their way out after firing several shots. They were slightly bruised by rocks and bricks thrown by the attackers. Liquor valued at $6,000 was seized and three men arrested.

$50,000 BEQUEST LEFT HOME FOR AGED

Concord, N. H., April 6.—A bequest of $50,000 is made to the Centennial Home for the Aged in this city in the will of the late Mrs. Mary Pressey of Concord. Other bequests include $1,000 each to the Universalist Church in this city and the orphans' home in Franklin; $500 each to the two local hospitals; $200 to the Concord Women's Club.

MARYLAND CYCLONE BLOWS DOWN HOUSES

Washington, April 6.—Many were seriously injured when a cyclone swept Silver Springs, Md., a few miles from Washington. A number of houses were blown down and property damage will run high. A corps of physicians was rushed to the scene to render first aid and if necessary bring the injured to hospitals here.

VICTIM OF BIG GEM 'ROBBERY' UNMARKED

Louis Gluck, member of the firm of the United Jewelry Company, Inc., formerly of Hanover street, Boston, showed no signs of having been assaulted when he was brought to police headquarters at Springfield after having told the police he had been held up and robbed of $85,000 in jewelry, rings and diamonds.

This was the substance of the testimony of Police Lieutenant John Murphy of Springfield before Judge James Morton and jury in Federal Court, where Gluck and two other former members of the firm are on trial for alleged concealment of assets during bankruptcy proceedings.

CLAIM "FAKE" ROBBERY.

L. J. Sieva, a certified public accountant, testified that the jewelry company, during the year 1920, stocked up with less than $25,000 worth of jewels. In the first six months of 1921, declared the accountant, the firm bought about $112,000 worth.

The holdup occurred, according to Gluck on July 1, 1921. The loss of the diamonds and other jewelry caused the firm to become bankrupt, according to the defence. The government contention is that the robbery was "faked" as an alibi for bankruptcy proceedings.

GLUCK TAKES STAND.

Henry and Louis Goldberg are the other defendants on trial.

The government has rested its case. The first defence witnesses were Charles Geyer and Henry Brown, two colored truck drivers, who told of finding Gluck, bound hand and foot, on the State Highway, between Springfield and Hartford. They stated that the man was bruised about the face and that it was impossible for him to free himself from his bonds.

CHOKED RIVERS STILL KEEP TO BANKS

White River Junction, Vt., April 6.—The Connecticut River was choked with ice at Hartford today. The water was four feet higher than yesterday, the result of a rapid rise which cleared the White River of all ice without damage. Both rivers are still within their banks.

The Mascoma River, which rose yesterday, receded somewhat today. Ice from the Ottaquechee jammed at Evarts, a quarter of a mile above the dam of the Ottaquechee Woolen Mill.

Information from Manchester, N. H., is that notwithstanding the Merrimack River had risen a foot since last night, and that ice was now running heavily in the stream, indications are that the Merrimack valley region is safe from the threatened Spring freshet. Beginning yesterday the ice in the Merrimack has gone out for a distance of ten miles south of here.

Most of the ice between Bellows Falls and Brattleboro has broken up and heavy cakes are menacing the Vernon dam, five miles below.

An ice jam, three miles long, fills the West River, which joins the Connecticut near Brattleboro. A fifty-foot trestle of the West River railroad has been carried away.

At Hooksett one of the supports of the Boston & Maine Railroad bridge spanning the Merrimac River gave way under the pressure of ice and water. Workmen were sent to watch the bridge while trains over the Manchester - Suncook Valley branch were routed through Concord.

At Eastport, Me., the century old wooden bridge connecting Eastport with the mainland was ordered closed to vehicles by Mayor Heffron, as the supports have been weakened by the heavy ice floes. It is expected that temporary repairs will be made immediately.

The Presumpscot River at Westbrook, Me., is rising rapidly, the water being nearly two feet over the dam at Falmouth.

FREIGHT CAR RAIDED BY WHISKEY BANDITS

Chicago, April 6.—Daring taleves forced a dozen railroad employes to throw up their hands while four confederates emptied a freight car at the Pennsylvania Railroad yards of whiskey valued at several thousands of dollars. The liquor was taken away in an automobile truck. It had been disguised under a carload of lettuce.

MARSHAL SAYS GIFTS MAY BE BOOMERANG

Bath, Me., April 6.—Mayor Oliver Moses, who is also City Marshal, has received a badge, pistol and large club, as tokens of esteem from the members of the Bath Rotary Club. On receiving the gift the Mayor-Marshal announced that their gifts might prove a boomerang as he would enforce all laws without fear or favor.

WIDOW OF PEARY ILL IN THE SOUTH

Washington, April 6.—Mrs. Robert E. Peary, widow of Admiral Robert E. Peary, is unable to attend the exercises to be held here today, commemorating the fourteenth anniversary of the discovery of the North Pole, as she is convalescing in the South from an attack of the grip and two attacks of influenza. Her son, Robert E. Peary, is with her.

JUANITA HANSEN FOUND NEW TOY IN HYPODERMIC NEEDLE

FIRST TRIAL LED TO SLAVERY

a half to two hours' sleep a night. I had to finish this serial, and I had to be in New York in January. What was the result?

Always in Rush

The two or three weeks I had so longed for, so that I might be cured, were never available. The devil saw to that!

I finished the serial the day before Christmas at 6:30 o'clock at night. At 8 o'clock the same night I was on a train bound for Oakland. The next day, when I stepped into the compartment on the East-bound train, I fainted, completely exhausted. I had my bed made and stayed there until we reached Chicago.

My life seemed always to be lived in a hurry, rushing—rushing from studio home, rushing back to the studio and rushing from one end of the country to the other.

Two days after I arrived in New York I started a new serial. The studio was ready for me. They didn't have time to give me a few days off. It would cost them too much money.

I knew to start this serial meant six months of steady work, the hardest I was ever to do.

Again the devil played his hand. He knew I couldn't get away for six months. He played havoc with my peace of mind. My first four-figure contract in New York should have made me, oh, so happy. But I was not free to play in the sunshine. So again it was only pretense!

Another resolution. I would beat the devil at his own game. I would see another doctor and I would take a cure while I was working.

I went to one of the finest doctors on Fifth avenue. Oh, yes, he would be very glad to help me. Of course I would have to have his nurse, and the fee would be a thousand dollars.

Quits Doctors

After calling on that doctor a few times, I discovered how little he knew. Most doctors know very little of narcotics. This is an age of specialists in the medical profession as elsewhere. I don't think that doctors ought to be permitted, unless they have a special license from the State, to treat narcotic cases.

"WATCH YOUR STEP!" Juna Hansen warns those seeking drug cure. She is shown here writing the story of her fight aget drugs

The only doctor that I have ever met who really seemed to cure addiction is in Oakland, California, and he is not a doctor of medicine. He has a license in the State of California for his sanitarium, and I know from what he told me personally that he has treated many doctors.

My expensive, exclusive Fifth avenue doctor one Sunday morning called at my apartment on Riverside Drive. He said he was so interested in my particular case, and wanted to help me. So he had come up to my apartment to see me, as Sundays are the only days that I did not work.

It just took about fifteen minutes for him to find out what his motive was. He wasn't interested in narcotics, nor in curing me. He had another little idea all his own. The result was I rang the bell for my maid and had him put out.

Then I made another resolution—I was through with doctors.

Takes the Needle

About this time, when I was making a purchase one day from a "dealer," I met a young woman who told me about a fur. So I went to her apartment to look at it. Of course, having met her at the dealer's, I knew that she was one of the fraternity. I purchased the fur coat.

Then in the course of the ensuing conversation she asked me what I had been taking. I told her heroin, and that I sniffed it through my nostrils. Then she told me about some NEW PLAYTHINGS that belong to the devil.

She told me there was only one way to take narcotics, and that was hypodermically. She also said she used morphine. She told me, and I guess she was right, that to sniff heroin would form a sort of ring at the base of my brain; that taking it hypodermically, the blood would throw off any impurities.

Narcotics, not having the government seal, like the bootlegger's liquor, have always been doctored, and they often contain ingredients that are very injurious. To prove that it was even more effective when taken hypodermically, she gave me my first shot with the syringe and needle. Soon a languid feeling overcame me and I felt only like being quiet.

The effect was indeed wonderful. I had found a new toy. The devil always finds a way. Now I resolved to use morphine.

From the girl that I spoke about I obtained a hypodermic and some needles. She showed me how to prepare the morphine, how to dissolve this narcotic in a small amount of boiled water. This solution is strained through cotton and drawn into the hypodermic syringe.

Somehow I had none of the fears that a beginner entertains. I was not afraid to insert the needle under my skin. How did I know where to insert the needle? I do not know.

This never worried me. Instinctively I felt that I ought not to disfigure my arms with the needle. I therefore took the shot in my leg.

An Ounce at $80

Now to the dealer, to purchase morphine! I bought an ounce, which cost me $80. That quantity lasted me about a month. When my supply was getting low I sought the pedlar again, to find, much to my chagrin, that he had been arrested. I did not know any other pedlar in the city of New York at this time. But I must find one.

The quantity that I had left of the first ounce lasted me only a few days. Finally it was all gone, and it was with great difficulty that I finished my work the last day.

That same evening I came home to my apartment, then on Riverside Drive; I could not eat my dinner;

WATCHMAN IS HELD AS SUIT ROBBER

Harrison W. Bill, a watchman of the United States Appraisers' Stores at Northern and Atlantic avenues, is under arrest today charged with theft of sixty-five suits of clothes from the L. Miller Company of No. 77 Bedford street.

The store was robbed a few days ago. Shortly afterward, it is alleged that the watchman offered suits of clothes throughout the building at bargain prices. Suspicion was aroused when an expert appraiser said that he overheard Bill offer a suit of clothes for $12 that was worth at least $40.

RECOVER SUITS.

The Boston police were notified and at the same time bargains in ready made clothing offered by a Lynn tailor aroused the suspicion of the Lynn police.

Forty-one of the stolen suits, which were valued at $1,300, were recovered in the store of the Lynn tailor, who, however, proved that he was unaware that the clothing had been stolen.

Three more suits were found in Bill's home at Oak Island, Revere, and his arrest followed. The watchman is forty years old and married.

CLEARED IN OTHER CASE.

Bill and another watchman were on guard at the appraisers' stores in June last when $6,000 worth of liquor was stolen from the building. Bill told the investigators that he did not hear the elevator used to bring down the liquor from the seventh floor, nor the rattling of the heavy outside steel door as it was raised to let the auto of the thieves back in for the loading of the loot.

No evidence of complicity was obtained against either man and the case has been officially "closed."

LOWELL MILLS TO EJECT 75 FAMILIES

Lowell, April 6.—Seventy-five families living in houses of the Saco-Lowell Company, on Broadway, Dutton, Worthen and Kitson streets, many of them tenants for more than twenty years, will be ejected from their homes May 1, according to notices sent to the tenants by the company.

In a petition presented to the City Council last year and again this year, the company requests the closing of Worthen street from Broadway to Kitson street, to provide sites for additional buildings. No action has been taken by the Council, other than granting hearings.

CONFER ON SCHOOL DENTAL WORK

That more than 90 per cent. of Massachusetts school children have defective teeth was the statement of Dr. Eugene R. Kelly, State commissioner of public health, in announcing a conference on the question of dental work in the schools at the State House today. Organized educational work to improve conditions is one of the plans suggested.

BROKEN WHEEL HOLDS UP B. & A. TRAFFIC

Springfield, April 6.—A wheel on a freight car broke one mile west of West Springfield today, causing a slight delay in traffic over the main line of the Boston & Albany railroad. "Sugar and Spice and Everything Nice"

Next time you have a Ferris Ham try to analyze what it is that makes the flavor so rich, fragrant and delightfully appetizing.

One moment you'll taste a strange blending of sugary syrup and perky salt; next you delight in a suggestion of mealy nuts, then fresh, verdant greens, and that exotic flavor of spicy hickory smoke.

No one really can describe it, it's so full and deep and rich. Yet one taste is all you need to know you're eating a Ferris Ham.

Boston Girls Take Part in Brilliant Event, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

BOSTON was well represented at the Cabaret Fantastique the other night in Washington at the Hotel Hamilton. The affair, given in aid of the Noal House Settlement, brought out a notable showing of the capital's smart circles, every table being reserved long before the revue opened.

Miss Anna Hamlin and Louisa Hoar—her engagement to Christopher La Farge just announced—were of the young women in the very modern group under the direction of Mrs. William Reyburn. Both Miss Hamlin and Miss Hoar are members of the Chilton and the Vincent clubs of Boston, where they have grant much of their time.

Among the most generously applauded features was the Venetian group of nobles and ladies. Both the music and the costumes of this number were created by a member of the Italian Embassy staff. The group of Spanish beauties naturally heightened the pulchritudinous display.

Prominent in the audience were Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson of Brookline, who opened their Washington residence a short while ago for the Spring season. Mrs. Anderson came on to Boston last week to spend Easter with her mother, Mrs. George Hamilton Perkins of Commonwealth avenue.

MR. AND MRS. PEYTON VAN RENSSELAER have concluded their brief visit to Newport, where they stayed at the LaForge cottage.

MRS. RUFUS L. PATTERSON, who is at present touring France by motor, plans to go later to Italy. Early in June she will be joined in England by Mr. Patterson and Mr. and Mrs. Casimir de Rham. Mrs. Patterson is the mother of Morehead Patterson, who, with his wife (Elsie Parsons), lives in Cambridge.

MRS. FREDERIC NEILSON gave a luncheon the other day in New York for Mrs. Elisha Dyer and her daughter, Mrs. Sydney J. Colford.

Mrs. Neilson is the grandmother of Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt, Mrs. Colford's daughter, whose engagement to Harry C. Cushing, 2d, has just been announced. Early in the season Mrs. Neilson, whose other daughter is Mrs. Hollis Hunnewell of Boston, gave a large ball for Miss Vanderbilt, one of the most important debutantes of Gotham, and for Miss Isabelle Kemp, daughter of Mrs. Hunnewell by a previous marriage.

MRS. EBEN STANWOOD and her daughter, Miss Faith Stanwood, one of the staunchest workers several years for Dr. Grenfell's mission, are due to return to these shores early next month. At present they are in Paris, where they have an apartment for the season. They will go directly to their Summer place in Maine at York Harbor, upon their arrival from abroad. Their Winter home is on Commonwealth avenue.

Miss Stanwood, by the way, is a very close friend of Mrs. William F. Stirlo (Katherine Pollard), whose marriage was solemnized last Fall at Gloucester, where the bride's mother, Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard, has a Summer home. Miss Stanwood and the former Miss Pollard worked together at the Grenfell Mission, with which the latter's husband, the Rev. Stirlo, is connected.

STATE SEEKS TO CALL BACK WARD'S FATHER

Albany, N. Y., April 6.—Mrs. Walter S. Ward of New Rochelle, other members of the Ward family and officials of Westchester, will be subpoenaed by the Attorney General next week in the State's investigation of the murder of Clarence Peters of Haverhill, Mass. A subpoena is said to have been served on Mrs. Ward.

The Attorney General is said to have communicated with George S. Ward, father of Walter, and is trying to persuade the wealthy baker to return to this State from White Sulphur Springs. It is doubtful, however, whether the senior Ward will go on the stand here to tell what he knows of the blackmailing plot hinted at by his son, Ralph.

Mayor Harry Scott of New Rochelle, John F. Brennan and Samuel Miller, of counsel for the Wards, and others connected with the case are to be questioned by the Attorney-General. The hearing will be resumed on Monday.

State officials who are trying to get to the bottom of the Ward case and its official handling in Westchester County have not decided how they will proceed to make witnesses answer questions.

The Attorney-General will proceed not take action until the investigation has ended.

The Attorney-General could lay a complaint before a magistrate, charging misdemeanor, and ask for a warrant of arrest, or he could ask the Governor to convene an extraordinary Grand Jury to indict for misdemeanor the witness who refused to answer.

HYLAN GETS CASH FOR JUBILEE

New York, April 6.—Prevented by an injunction from using the city's money, Mayor Hylan has succeeded in having the necessary funds subscribed by private citizens to carry out his projected jubilee celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the merging of the five boroughs that comprise New York.

Announcement of the Mayor's success followed a conference with representatives of hotel, theatrical and taxicab interests, merchants, brokers, contractors and amusement park operators.

The amount pledged was not stated but the mayor had planned to spend $500,000 of the city's money on the jubilee.

COOLIDGE SEES ONLY HARDING FOR 1924

Washington, April 6.—Vice-President Coolidge today predicted that President Harding's re-nomination and re-election would be demanded by the people because of the record of his administration.

The Vice-President declined to predict what his attitude would be toward a renomination as Mr. Harding's running mate, indicating that he did not regard the present as an opportune time for discussion of the subject.

It was explained at Mr. Coolidge's office he had made his position clear because of numerous questions addressed to him and because of recent newspaper speculation involving his name in connection with the party's 1924 ticket.

He sent this telegram in reply to a questioner, who asked him whether he believed President Harding would be renominated, and whether he himself would again became a candidate for the Vice-Presidency:

"I believe the people will demand the renomination and re-election of President Harding, because of the great record of achievement under his leadership. I have no announcement to make at this time of my own plans for the future."

AUGUSTA, GA., DINERS TO HEAR HARDING

Augusta, Ga., April 6.—With only two days of his vacation remaining, President Harding hoped today for better golfing weather. The President has been able to get in one round daily all week but frequently April showers interfered.

The President will deliver an address tonight at a banquet by the City of Augusta to his party and other prominent visitors. It will be the first formal address to be made by the President during his vacation trip.

"SHAKE HANDS WITH HEALTH EVERY DAY"

"The American mother does not know how to take care of her children unless she teaches them to eat prunes regularly"

That is the simple, but startling, conclusion reached by a famous health writer. Why are prunes so essential to the well-being of every child? Because prunes—and especially Sunsweet Prunes—contain more digestible natural fruit sugar than any other fruit. That means energy—for study and play. They are rich in tonic iron and other mineral and "vitamine" elements. That means strength—greater resistance to disease. And, more important than all—

Ask your grocer for these fine, flavor-full sweetmeats in the new 2-lb. Sunsweet carton and send for our special children's recipe folder. Use the coupon below.

UNIONS ACCEPT TEXTILE WAGE ADVANCE

Fall River, April 6.—Six unions here affiliated with the Textile Council have voted to accept the 12½ per cent. wage increase, effective April 30 offered by the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

An increase of 15 per cent. had been demanded by the Council.

Of the six unions voting, four were unanimous for acceptance of the manufacturers' offer. These were the carders, slash tenders, mule spinners and yarn finishers.

The weavers voted by a show of hands and the offer was accepted by a small majority. The loom fixers accepted the offer by a vote of ninety-eight to twenty.

A majority vote of four of the unions was necessary to acceptance of the offer by the Textile Council.

Unions here affiliated with the United Textile Workers of America have not indicated their probable action on the wage increase. The decision of the weavers, however, to accept the increase, is expected to have some bearing on the policy of the dofters, sweepers and other workers who have held out for a 20½ per cent. increase.

Announcements of 12½ per cent. wage increases, effective April 30, were made today by officials of the Orswell, Nockege, Grant and Fitchburg yarn mills of Fitchburg. Approximately 1,800 employes are affected. All other textile mills in Fitchburg had previously advanced wages and the local branch of the Amalgamated Textile Union had arranged a meeting for next Tuesday, when a demand for a 12½ per cent increase was to be considered.

MRS. PERRY'S ALIMONY HEARING POSTPONED

The divorce suit of Mrs. Frances W. Perry against her husband, Winthrop L. Perry, in which alimony is asked pending a hearing of the case in Plymouth County is on the list in the equity motion division of the Suffolk Superior Court. Because of the absence of counsel for Perry, Judge Welt postponed the matter until April 17.

Mrs. W. I. Perry

Perry, who is the son of Alonzo W. Perry of Rockland, after a sensational disappearance of his wife with a chauffeur employed by Perry, brought a suit for divorce on the ground of infidelity.

Since that time Perry has entertained a belief that his wife is not of sound mind, and has asked the court to appoint a guardian for her.

MRS. ETHEL O. SELINGER.

MUSIC STUDENT IS BRIDE OF MERCHANT

After a short reception at the home of the bride's parents the couple left for their honeymoon, which will be spent in New York and Pottstown.

Mrs. Selinger is a graduate of Boston University, and was a special student at the Boston Conservatory of Music. 'TRISTAN UND ISOLDE' WELL RECEIVED

By ZOE FABER

One of the most popular and one of the most tragic of the operas of Richard Wagner, "Tristan und Isolde," was sung last night at the Opera House before an audience that was large. It was an audience that applauded to the echo everything that was done and that, in certain places, wept for the fate of the stricken lovers. Thus the potency of the music still.

The title roles were sung by Heinrich Knote and Elsa Alsen. The voice of Mr. Knote has been commented upon before. Last night he was again over-dramatic to the disadvantage of his singing. As for Elsa Alsen, she is a heroic figure of the Amazonian type with the sort of voice that goes with it. She has tremendous volume, too tremendous, in fact, most of the time. There is beautiful quality in the voice, but much of it is lost through the artist's inability to build up a climax gradually instead of assuming tones of climax practically all of the time.

Mr. Eduard Moerike conducted and got splendid results.

BOMB WRECKS KLAN PAPER'S OFFICE

Chicago, April 6.—Explosion of a bomb wrecked the publication office of Dawn, a Ku Klux Klan organ, last night. Twenty minutes later, another bomb partly damaged the office of F. W. Gilland, a roofer, who said he had advertised in the Klan publication.

Edwin J. Parker, publisher of Dawn, said he had been receiving threatening letters.

"Only two days ago I received a telephone call warning me that my printing establishment and my home would be blown up," he said.

Policemen were assigned to guard Parker's home.

SENATOR LAYS DRINK CHARGE TO PLOT

Providence, April 6.—Sen ator F. B. Fess of Warre R. I., accused of drunkenness in the Sen ate Chamber and publicly repudiated by a party caucus of his colleagues, declares the action the result of the determination of Lieutenant-Governor F. A. Tourge to "get" him.

"If the vicious and utterly false charges were not made by men hiding behind 'legislative privilege' they would prove to be made the basis of slander suits," he says.

The resolution adopted by the Senate Democrats declares the senator "has permitted himself to be demoralized by beverages brought into the chamber . . . in violation and contempt of laws for the very purpose. Furthermore, he is charged with deserting his party by a party caucus of its legislative and joining with the Republicans

ELECTROCUTED CRIMINALS CAN BE RESURRECTED BY INJECTION

ADRENAL GLAND SECRETION WORKS MEDICAL 'MIRACLES'

By A. J. LORENZ,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, April 6.—Resurrection of the dead as a medical "miracle" formed the topic of discussion in scientific circles here today following the interesting disclosures made by Dr. Dennis W. Crile before the Chicago Medical Society.

Electrocuted criminals may be restored to life by their relatives if they can obtain possession of the body within a relatively short time after execution. Dr. Hugh N. Mackechnie, president of the society, declared in commenting on Dr. Crile's methods.

Persons actually dead, have been resuscitated by the injection of adrenalin into the heart, Dr. Crile said. Adrenalin, the exact functions of which are not yet fully understood, is an extract of the adrenal gland, an organ just above the kidneys.

LONG NEEDLE USED.

A long hypodermic needle is used in making the injection into the heart, Dr. Crile said.

"With the results of these experiments known," Dr. Mackechnie observed, "it would be unsafe for the State to let relatives of a prisoner executed in the electric chair take possession of the body for many hours.

"In the case of hanging, however, there is little chance of resuscitation, as the neck is broken and the central nervous system is cut off.

"The effect of Dr. Crile's treatments upon electrocuted persons is to contract the blood vessels, especially the limbs, increasing the blood pressure and stimulate the heart.

STIMULATES HEART.

"The heart, of course, often has been stimulated merely by the prick of a hat pin, but the injection of this gland secretion would be much more effective."

Dr. Crile said that his treatment would be of most value in cases of shock, violent death or drowning, or in the case of patients who die under anaesthetic.

"A sudden shock," he explained, "causes the blood vessels in the limbs to dilate; it surcharges them with blood, and there is not sufficient vital fluid in the heart to keep the victim alive. It is this condition that the use of adrenalin corrects."

PATIENTS HAVE RECOVERED.

Restoration to life of patients dying of long wasting diseases is not practical, Dr. Crile observed. Nor could a man be kept alive indefinitely by this treatment.

"In the case of very aged persons the sudden increase in the blood pressure would prove fatal," he said.

"It is no fountain of eternal youth.

"Life can be restored and patients have completely recovered their health who had been pronounced dead not only by myself but other physicians."

Dr. Crile declared that he would employ his treatment extensively in the case of dying persons and study the results.

BROCKTON BANK HEADS MUST EXPLAIN LOAN

Brockton, April 6.—Charles P. Holland, president of the Plymouth County Trust Company, and George E. Fisher, a director, were summoned to a hearing in court next Monday on charges of accepting fees for a loan in violation of the State banking laws.

Both bankers are alleged to have accepted $6,600 each as a commission or bonus for securing a loan of $26,000 for Gilbert R. Finney in 1920. The complaint was was made by Attorney Harry E. Stone, trustee in the bankruptcy of Finney. Finney is now being sued for divorce by his wife, Mrs. Etta Ford Finney on charges of desertion and non support.

Finney conducted the Brockton Tack Company and creditors brought civil suit against Holland, Fisher & Finney, charging that all three were concerned in the management of the bankrupt company. The case is now pending.

Holland and Fisher stated that their transactions were entirely of a personal nature and had no connection with the trust company.

Maine Man Married at Sea to an English Girl

New York, April 6.—With the ship's band playing the "Lohengrin Wedding March," Miss Edith Lockhart of Bristol, England, and Bart Doyle of Old Orchard, Me., were married by Captain W. McLean, of the United States liner President Polk, two days before reaching New York.

According to the bride, it was her desire to marry in England, but the law prescribes that the banns must be published fifteen days before the marriage takes place. Passengers also informed her that she might have trouble with the immigration authorities, and so finally upon the advice of the entire personnel of the first cabin a sea marriage was decided upon.

Cardinal Invited to Lowell

Lowell, April 6.—Invitation has been extended Cardinal O'Connell to pontificate at the memorial mass to be celebrated on the Common on Memorial Day. The Rev. Dr. Duffy, chaplain of the 69th New York Regiment, will be asked to preach the sermon.

The first electrical storm of the year, accompanied by the heaviest rainfall, swept Boston and eastern Massachusetts. No damage was reported in Boston.

At Quincy, a flag pole in front of the postoffice had been struck by lightning, and the city lighting system was temporarily rendered hors de combat when two transformers, connected in circuit with the city lights, were struck.

MORE RICH THAN POOR COMMIT SUICIDE

By VIOLA BROTHERS SHORE.
Copyright, 1923, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 6.—More wealthy people kill themselves than poor ones.

"Seventy-nine millionaires ended their lives last year. The reasons seem to be largely ill health although a great many are addicted to the use of drugs and narcotics and were disturbed financially. After all a millionaire is in double trouble with his wife and his army as did other men.

"Give money, and you have cause of one—men because of money—millionaires kill themselves because of ill health, drugs or family troubles."

That sums up today the experience of Rev. Harry M. Warren who in his position as head of the Save a Life League, has come in contact with perhaps more would be suicides than any other man in the country.

SUPPLIES COUNSEL.

"Most suicides are not insane," he explained. "Many are only in need of a good doctor, some of a good lawyer, some need a friend. The regular suicide is one with a certain kind of mental disturbance. He is pitiful. But a large number of the cases need only a few dollars.

"A great many people ended their lives last year because they were literally starving to death. Here in this big city where there is an enormous food distribution, out of our five hotels and restaurants.

"Many young girls come to a decision that are unfortunate. They no longer can conceal their condition and they are afraid that when it becomes known they will be turned away from home. They see nothing before them, but the river. We see that they reach a maternity hospital where they can leave their babies afterwards in good hands and nobody will know anything about it.

GAVE 400 REASONS.

"One man wrote and published a book giving 400 reasons for committing suicide. The poor wretch must have been convinced by his own logic for he subsequently killed himself.

"Children occasionally come to us. There is a heavy suicide rate among children. They kill themselves because they are unhappy at home—or in ill health.

"Loneliness causes a great many people to attempt to end their lives. More physicians commit suicide than any other class of people.

"A gentleman's widow left a note—'I am desperate. I can do one of three things—commit some crime for which I can be arrested—enter a house of ill fame—or I can die.' She preferred to die—she could have been saved by the payment of debts amounting to $50.

by coming here, and President Harding, a good politician, will realize it.

LORD CECIL comes, telling us we ought to join the league. If the President campaigns for the league he will be telling his hearers that they ought to do what an English statesman tells them to do. That will not sit well on the chests of many voters, including many of the admirers of Governor Alfred Smith of New York. And Governor Alfred Smith will probably be nominated for Vice President on the Democratic ticket running against President Harding.

A STRAIGHT American campaign, with no British or other European attachments would be the best program for President Harding, especially with Henry Ford sitting back in the political shadows, "keeping watch above his own."

ENGLAND EXPECTS Americans to spend millions in her shops and hotels this year. The English have prepared soda water fountains for their benighted American cousins and plenty of jazz music.

In France Americans will spend three times what they spend in England.

That is the right way to send American money to Europe. Every American brings back in world education and wider outlook full value for his spending. From certain parts of America, however, will journey travelers that, reaching London, will not inquire about the soda water fountain.

London, April 6.—Miss Gwendolin Mary Field, granddaughter of the late Marshall Field of Chicago, was married to Archibald Charles Edmonstone, son of Sir Archibald Edmonstone.

The bride was given away by her uncle, Admiral Lord Beatty, who took the place of Marshall Field as the bride's brother, who has been ill.

The church was crowded with a fashionable Anglo-American congregation. The street in front of the church was packed with spectators, and the bride was cheered as she drove up with her uncle, Lord Rosmore, who acted as best man.

The guests included the Spanish Ambassador and Madame Merry Del Val, and numerous representatives of the American embassy.

The couple will spend their honeymoon in Spain and will make their home in Dunreath Castle, near Glasgow.

SAY $3 HOOD GRAFT WENT TO WIZARD

Atlanta, Ga., April 6.—Additional charges of graft have been made in the Ku Klux Klan war, H. W. Evans Imperial Wizard and F. L. Savage, Chief of Staff of the organization being accused of appropriating Klan funds to their own use. It is said warrants will be issued for them.

Savage is alleged to have placed $65,000 of Klan funds to his own account in a local bank while the Imperial Wizard is alleged to have taken $3 from every initiation fee paid into the order by new members.

The allegations follow those against T. J. McKinnon and N. N. Furney, respectively head of the Klan investigation department and cashier at the Palace, charged with embezzling Klan funds in the sum of $100,000.

Charges against the four Klan officials were filed by attorneys for W. J. Simmons, Emperor of the Klan, who, earlier in the week, gained temporary control of the order through court action only to lose it the following day through counter act on of Wizard Evans.

Supporters of Evans have declared that Simmons' action is nothing more than the outcropping of greed. They allege longstanding enmity between Simmons and Evans and said the war really began even before Simmons organized the Knights, which resulted in Evans ordering all "true Klansmen" to have nothing to do with the women's auxiliary Simmons having branded the new order as the women's division of the Ku Klux.

Following that, the Evans supporters say, Simmons decided he should get a "rake-off" from the Klan since it was the child of his brain and effort, and accordingly sought legal channels in which to gain his ends.

POOLS TO REPLACE NORTH END BEACH

The bathing beach at North End Park will be discontinued this Summer and in its place will be erected two large swimming pools with a steady stream of water continually running through them, it was announced by Mayor Curley, following a conference with the city planning board, Health Commissioner Dr. Francis X. Mahoney and Park Commissioner James B. Shea.

One pool will be for the women and children, the other for men and boys. A partition will separate the two.

RICH MEN READY TO GO BAIL FOR BOGAN

Wealthy and prominent Boston business men will come to the aid of Edward Bogan, former prohibition officer and convicted as the slayer of Joseph Sequeira during a raid at the North Ferry last June, and will produce sureties when a motion to admit Bogan to bail is presented to Judge Morton today, it is understood.

Bogan is scheduled to be sentenced today. The motion to admit the prisoner to bail is understood to be the first move for a new trial.

New and "mysterious" angles of the case have developed. Information relative to recent developments is being carefully guarded by James [illegible] Assistant United States District Attorney and by Attorney Joseph [illegible] although both have refused to admit that "there is something in the wind" which Zottoli says will benefit the case of his client.

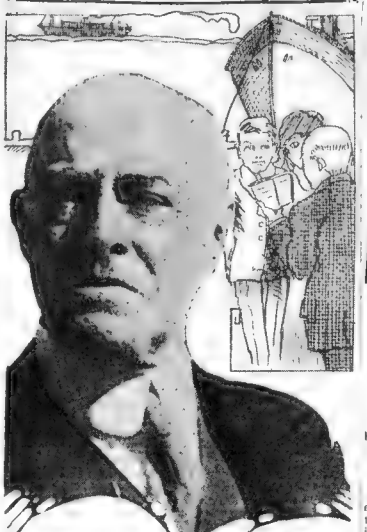
STORIES OF BOSTON TOWN
By Jo Swerling



PARSON BURNS, MAJOR DOMO OF THE IMMIGRATION Gretna Green, out of luck since the quota. He married 'em by the droves in the past, in eighty-five languages and a hundred dialects, but them days is gone forever.

LAMENT OF THE DOCK PARSON

A warm wind ruffles the barnacles that cling to the wharves along the Waterfront. Old Pat London is overhauling the ancient cab which for a good eighty years has been the official equipage of the Immigration Office. Taxicabs come and go, but Old Pat's cab goes on forever. Gone are the screaming gulls to the lonely islands where they fly each April. The hardy race of men which peoples the huge, draughty, ramshackle sods have mothballed their sheepskin jackets and leather jerkins.

One by one the coastwise lines warn their craft out of the storage basins. The waterfront stirs to action. Everybody a happy but Jimmie Burns, the Dock Parson. It's the mating season, but Jimmie's out in the cold.

The immigration quota has knocked the romance out of Jimmie's life. He hasn't performed a marriage ceremony this week. As genial passenger agent of the United Lines, he manages to keep up the spice of his career by keeping exercised by the quota laws and is nursing days for the good old Dock Parson.

Marriage a Day in Good Old Times

Never a day passed in the good old times without I tied a couple in the bonds of holy matrimony," mourns Jimmie, who is seventy years old and has seen a lot. "Bonemen there'd be two or three a day. I've been around the Cunard docks since 1877, and I've never missed an arrival or departure of a Cunarder in all those years. I never have lost the thrill of watching the big ships come and go. You see, I was born here in East Boston and I've never been out of East Boston in my life. And watching those ships come from strange ports, with strange cargoes and strange people from all parts of the world—do you know what I mean? Then when I became a justice of the peace and started to marry 'em on the docks I got a taste of it all by proxy, as it were.

"I've married couples from all nations. Every Swiss Brazilians, Britishers, Germans, Russians, Australians, Italians, Spaniards, Portuguese, Greeks, Roumanians, Norwegians, Swedes, Danes, Serbians, Dutch, Belgians, Chinks, Japs, Siamese, Turks, Persians. Hell's bells! I even married a couple of Chaldeans once. I don't know where Chaldea is, but these people came from there.

"I've tied Venezuelans, Australians, Tasmanians, Zanzibarians, Porto Ricans, couples from Indo China, from Khiva, from the Congo, from Dahomey Land, from Chile, New South Wales, Tasmania, Montenegro, Siberia, Wales. From all over. It got into my blood. You know what a drug addict is? That's how I got to feel about it. It got so I had to have one or two couples a day to join in the holy bonds of matrimony, otherwise I was nervous and irritable and couldn't sleep well.

Heard "I Do" in 85 Languages

"I guess maybe a thousand times I married couples. I've heard them say 'I do' in eighty-five languages and over a hundred dialects. I have seen the flush of brides mantle cheeks ranging from alabaster white to ebon black. And then the quota came along and the all for the Dock Parson began to slow down.

"Now when I get a call it's an event. I'm beginning to lose my cunning at tying the knot. I am as a rank amateur. I bluster and hem and haw. The occasional couples I marry see the difference.

"But I can't help it. Since the first of the year I've had only three ceremonies to perform. The powers vested in me by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is slowly being thrown to the dogs. All on account of the quota."

Old Pat echoes the lament of the Dock Parson. Many a fee he earned in the good old marrying days, taking the bride and groom to their American home in the famous cab. And Mrs. Angelo, the Italian matron, who acts as chaperone and guide, philosopher and friend, to the prospective brides—she, too, feels the change in the times and goes about her duties with less zip than she did in the halcyon days when the Dock Parson was in his prime.

"The quota did it," says Jimmie. "Damn the quota."

RUM SEIZED AT POLICE FEAST IN PORTLAND

Portland, Me., April 6.—Supplies of alcohol and brandy punch were seized in a raid by Deputy Sheriff Emerson H. Doughty as they were about to be served to fifty policemen and their guests, an ex-judge and seven Aldermen, at a banquet in Pythian Hall.

The policemen were all members of the Portland Police Social Club and the banquet was an annual affair. The ex-judge was Clifford E. McGlauflin and accompanying him was Sidney St. F. Thaxter, former recorder of the Municipal Court.

So sudden was the appearance of Deputy Doughty that the waiters did not have time to remove the incriminating evidence. The gay banter across tables among the representatives of the law over the expected treat, stopped as though at a signal for every guest present recognized the man at the search warrant that he held in his hand.

JUDGE FROWNS.

Judge McGlauflin frowned. The seven city fathers scowled. The policemen blushed with embarrassment.

Deputy Doughty strode by the banquet tables and into the kitchen.

In the banquet hall, the silence became painful.

Then the deputy reappeared. In one hand he held a gallon can of alcohol, in the other a gallon jug of brandy punch.

NO ARRESTS MADE.

After Doughty had left with the liquor, the banquet was resumed but without the high note of gayety with which it had begun.

Sheriff Graham today stated, however, that the county officials would be unable to make the arrests urged by local clergymen because it was evident that there was no intent to sell the liquor.

The clergymen are said to have different views on the subject and to be eager to press for an investigation.

GUILTY FISH MAGNATES AT DEER ISLAND

1,561 Liars Attend Great Performance

AMERICAN IS HOST TO EXPERTS

Hollis Street Theatre Too Small for All, but Contest Continues

This most extraordinary theatrical performance in the history of the theatre in Boston took place yesterday at the Hollis Street Theatre.

The house was packed to every seat held a Liar.

There were exactly 1,561 of the best liars in all New England gathered in the auditorium. No amateurs were they. Each had demonstrated their ability to fulfill preliminaries and half-Nelson the term.

The Boston American selected as the treat for these Liars from all over New England a play that has earned the reputation of being the greatest comedy drama of the generation, "Lightnin'." The play ran for three years in New York, for a year in Chicago, and is now on the fifteenth week of its extraordinary run in Boston.

EVERY KIND OF LIAR.

"Lightnin'" was selected because the principal character, "Lightnin'" Bill Jones, manages to effect a great deal of good through his penchant for lying. Nearly 10,000 men, women and children from all parts of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont participated in the Liars' Contest held by the Boston American. The 1,561 winners selected are therefore entitled to be regarded as the pick of New England Liars.

It cost over $1,000 to get the house and troupe for this special performance for Liars but it was worth it. There were old Liars, young Liars who Liars stout Liars, poor Liars and rich Liars. In one box there sat an old fellow who must have prevaricated his way through eighty lying Summers, and next to him sat a boy of six who started his fibbing career young and should achieve great note among Munchhausens by the time he is old enough to vote.

ARRIVED EARLY.

They began to appear in the lobby of the theatre at 1 o'clock, and due to the easy camaraderie of Liars the pew holders became acquainted and started to swap fibs as they waited for the curtain time. The lobby was full of conversation concerning strange hunting trips, extraordinary cold spells, fish of fabulous size, meticulous service of the New Haven Road and other local transportation, remarkable service from coal dealers, marvels of the magnetic, mineral and animal kingdoms and other imaginative narratives.

Hundreds of worthy Liars were kept away from the special Liars' Matinee because the theatre can seat only 1,561 persons. But set them not dismay. The Liars' Contest will continue apace. There will be more tickets to "Lightnin'" given away each day. Those who did not win tickets to the matinee can still see this show at the expense of the Boston American.

The special performance was enacted by the same company which gives the regular performances. The Liars saw Percy Haswell, who plays the principal part, Jane Oaker, and all the others in the cast.

The recital by "Lightnin' Bill" about the time he chased a swarm of bees across the desert in mid-Winter without losing a single bee brought a roar of applause from his delighted fellow Liars in the audience.

VERIFY "LIGHTNIN' BILL."

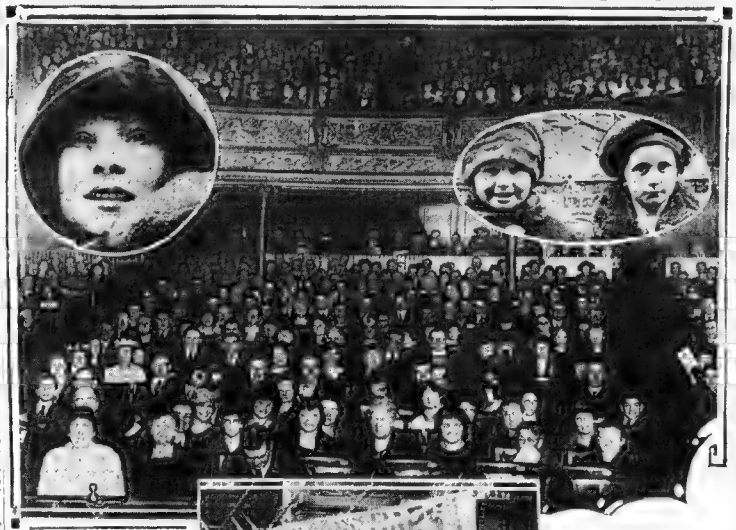
There were at least a score of people in the audience who immediately claimed they were present at the other end of the desert to capture the fleeing bees and tame them.

There still remains the awarding of the three ten dollar gold pieces for the three best lies printed during the contest. These will be awarded at the conclusion of the contest, which is to be continued until further notice.

Watch the Boston American for the announcement of another contest, which promises to be as interesting as the Liars' Contest.

(The Liars' Contest in this issue and hereafter will be found on one of the two pages devoted to the comics. Look for it there each day.)

ALL KINDS OF FIBBERS AT SHOW



EVERY ONE A MASTER LIAR

Fifteen hundred and sixty-one liars from all over New England see "Lightnin'" at the Hollis Theatre as guests of the Boston American. Below, the crowd gathering at the theatre an hour before the performance started. Above, inside the theatre—all kinds of liars and experts as the lies they told in the Boston American contest which gained them tickets proved. Upper left inset, Miss Susie Brown of Rockland, Me., one of the prettiest prevaricators of the gathering; right inset, the two youngest Liars — what experts they'll be when they're old enough to vote.

SON CHARGES FATHER SHOT MOTHER

Fifteen-year-old Paul Reguneo, today related a vivid picture of how his father shot his mother while the six children cowered in fear in the kitchen of their home, No. 146 Havre street, East Boston.

The mother, who walked to East Boston Relief Hospital for treatment for a deep wound in her left leg, denied the boy's story and insisted she had shot herself.

The son told the police that his father, Francesco, arrived for supper and began upbraiding his wife for attention paid to another man. A violent quarrel started, he said. The youngsters stood around sobbing.

The father, the boy said, reached into a cupboard and drew out the pistol and fired once. The mother dropped to the floor.

The wounded woman, grilled by police, remained unshaken in her story to the effect she had reached to the mantelpiece for a spoon and knocked the pistol to the floor, causing it to explode.

The authorities are still investigating.

2 BOSTON BANKS ARE TO MERGE

Announcement was made today that consolidation of the South Boston Trust Company with the Federal National Bank will be effected immediately after approval of sale by the trust company's stockholders at special meeting April 11.

Federal National will operate the South Boston Trust as its fourth branch. The South Boston Trust Company has gross deposits of about $4,000,000; the Federal National $20,000,000.

The new institution will have a deposit account of $24,000,000 and resources of $26,000,000, making it the sixth largest national bank in the city. President T. M. Logan of the trust company will become vice-president of the Federal National.

To Be Colder Here.

It will be only a little bit colder tonight and tomorrow, the weather man predicted today. The weather will continue fair. With the mercury hovering around 50 today, the temperature was declared not to be particularly unseasonable.

LINER ARRIVES WITH CARGO OF 250 SIMIANS

Enough monkey glands arrived in Boston today to rejuvenate a goodly proportion of the senile population.

However, that, as too, who, the monks are destined for.

The British steamer City of Cambridge, docking at East Boston, unloaded 250 of the animals, fifty of which are scheduled to be eligible for membership in the Actors' Equity. They are to become Thespians, doing their stuff in various circuses and theatrical enterprises.

The remaining 200 are due to be turned over to various surgeons for experimental purposes.

Only ten of the monkeys died en route, which is a remarkably low percentage, the monk tribe being notoriously poor sailors. For company they had two rhinoceri, also scheduled for circus routine.

MATES RESCUE MAN IN TRESTLE PLUNGE

Thomas Mahoney, thirty years old of No. 6 Lenox place, Roxbury, while crossing a trestle in yard No. 6 of the Boston & Maine, fell into the water. He was fished out by fellow-employes and taken to Relief Hospital.

YOUTH FELLED BY WATCHMAN AFTER CHASE

Watchman Edward F. O'Kane, patrolling the Beacon Chocolate factory, Broadway and Albany streets, South End heard a crash of glass.

He ran to the front of the factory and there found two panels in a door had been smashed. Two youths were running down the street.

Grasping a club, O'Kane pursued. Fifty yards from the building he overtook John Doucette, nineteen, of No. 8 Auburn street, Roxbury, and struck him over the head.

Doucette toppled over unconscious and O'Kane chased after his companion, calling for police. Patrolmen Conroy, Winn and Brickley, coming from opposite directions, cornered John Mackey nineteen, of No. 93 Mercer street, South Boston.

Both youths were taken to City Hospital suffering from cuts of the heads. Doucette also had scalp wounds. Both were alcholic. The police think the window was broken during a brawl.

PROBING DEATH OF SIDEWALK VICTIM

Police are investigating the death of Thomas Seeley of No. 19 Causeway street who was found on the sidewalk in front of No. 65 Green street with a fractured skull. He was taken to the Relief Hospital, but died without regaining consciousness.

CAPEN BALKS NEW HUNGER STRIKER

Sheriff Samuel H. Capen of Norfolk County is all fed up on hunger strikes of prisoners in Dedham Jail.

Arthur Schultz of Lawrence has been on hunger strike for eleven days. Today the sheriff told him flat:

See here, Schultz, I want you to cut out this fooling and take food. If you don't I'll have you rolled up in a blanket and will force you to eat."

Schultz, with eleven days' appetite piled up beside him, pondered a moment, then quit, saying:

"All right, Sheriff, I'll eat."

Food was brought and was quickly surrounded by Schultz. The hunger strike was off.

Schultz may have obtained his inkling from the Nicola Sacco case. He is a fruitful source of trouble maker at penal institutions. He was committed to Concord Reformatory for an indeterminate term for breaking and entering.

He was granted parole, which he broke. He was sent back. He broke so many rules they transferred him to Deer Island. There he broke rules until the Prison Commission sent him over to Dedham Jail.

LIFE SAVING CLASS FOR HUB POLICEMEN

Herbert A. Wilson, police commissioner, city of Boston, has notified the captains of the several police divisions to detail patrolmen to report to Captain Jack Wallace, instructor in life saving, Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the American Red Cross, at the Cabot Street Bath House for life-saving instruction.

Herbert A. Wilson

A total of 144 men will receive instruction. The first class will begin Tuesday next and continue Tuesdays and Fridays at 2, 3 and 4 p. m.

Captain Wallace has already demonstrated resuscitation methods for those apparently drowned or those overcome by gas or electric shock before the police and fire departments of Arlington, Chelsea and Norwood.

Christiania—The Norwegian government has approached its neighbor nations with a view to holding a conference here to consider joint action against the smuggling of spirituous liquors.

FISH MEN TO BE PUT TO WORK

Assigned to Cells at Island After Spending Night in Jail

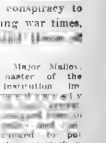
The Charters Corporation, found guilty of conspiracy to boost prices during war times,

F. Monroe Dyer.

Major Malley, master of the institution im[illegible] yesterday [illegible] to put them at work in various parts of the jail.

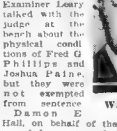
The dapper F. Monroe Dyer, president of the State Fish Company, and his thirteen associates, spent last night at Charles street Jail. They left for the House of Correction on the one o'clock boat.

Joseph A. Rich, one of the officers of the Bay State Fishing Company who defaulted Saturday, put in an appearance. The default was removed after counsel explained that Mr. Rich had arrived from California only a few minutes before going into court. Physicians expected to testify as to his physical [illegible] had not arrived when Judge Sanderson [illegible] proposed sentence upon the defendants, including Mr. Rich. Medical Examiner Leary talked with the judge at the bench about the physical conditions of Fred G. Phillips and Joshua Paine, but they were not exempted from sentence.



W. E. Curran

Damon E. Hall, on behalf of the defendants moved for a stay of the execution of sentence for ten days to give an opportunity to apply to a justice of the Supreme Court at Washington for writs of certiorari and error. Mr. Hall stated that under the United States statutes such application would not be entertained until ten days after judgment had been rendered. The necessary papers had been prepared, Mr. Hall said, and the error relied upon was a violation of the XIV Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which provides that no citizen of the United States shall be deprived by any State of life, liberty or property without due process of law. Mr. Hall added that it was very clear that the power of the State courts is governed by the Federal statutes.



John Burns, Jr.

Former Attorney General Henry C. Attwill said that the provisions of the United States laws relating to writs of error were applicable only to courts of the United States and not to State courts.

Judge Sanderson was of opinion that the Federal statutes did govern the State courts in the matter, and denied the motion for a stay of execution.

PROBE DEATH IN NEAR BEER SALOON

While indications point to an accident, the fact that the body of Thomas Feeley, fifty-nine, was found today nine feet from the cellar stairway of a near-beer saloon at No. 65 Green street, West End, is causing the police to investigate his death.

Feeley, a porter employed by William H. Hunnewell, proprietor of the cafe, is believed to have tumbled down the stairs when he went to fix the furnace. He was near-sighted. He lived at No. 19 Causeway street.

PIGGLY WIGGLY MAN TELLS OF BOYHOOD DAYS

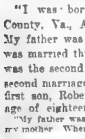
SPELLING BEE CONTEST WON BY TRICKING RIVALS

The Piggly Wiggly man frankly admits a rather tricky boyhood. He was cute in spelling bees. He deliberately sawed his thumb to get away from an awful week to a picnic. He managed to throw the load on slower-witted negroes with whom he hustled bundles of barrel staves.

But Clarence Saunders of Memphis, Tenn., the Piggly Wiggly president, who cornered Wall Street bears in battle of recent history, says he does not propose to make his own story of his life's success conform sorrily to accepted standards and regulations

"I was born in Amherst County, Va., August 9, 1881. My father was a farmer. He was married three times and I was the second child from the second marriage. My mother's first son, Robert, died at the age of eighteen months.

"My father was much older than my mother. When I came she must have regarded me as something personal to cling to.



Clarence Saunders.

"If there be such a thing as maternal impression, then my character was impressed, at or before my birth, with my mother's determination that I should find life satisfactory.

"At the age of nine I was moved to Clarksville, Tenn., where my father obtained another job on railroad construction work. We lived in a log house and for five months of the year I attended the country school.

IN TOBACCO FIELDS.

"When I wasn't in school I was working in the tobacco fields. I was instructed in the job of worming.

"When you find a worm you take it between your thumb and first finger and you squash.

"Every night my clothes were stiff as boards from the tobacco gum. Except when I was given time off to attend school, I worked continuously from 4:30 a. m. until sundown.

"Then I would go home, wash the supper dishes, do the housework and chop the firewood. I used to think the only reason they burned wood was to give me occasion to chop some more.

JOB IN SAWMILL.

"When I became eleven, I got a job in a country sawmill. I caught the headings from the saw. All day, for twelve hours, I'd sit buried up to my chin in sawdust. And I was paid 25 cents a day.

"When I wanted a thing I got it. That's always been my character, whether it was wanting to dynamite the bears of Wall Street, as in this recent Piggly Wiggly stock matter, or whether it was to get off from my sawmill job and attend a picnic.

"My method of getting to the picnic was simple. I simply stuck the ball of my thumb carefully under the saw and shaved off a bit of flesh. That, ostensibly, incapacitated me for work the next day, and with bandaged thumb, I attended the picnic.

WINS SPELLING BEE.

"And I got what I wanted in school—when I was allowed to attend it. About the only competitions we had were spelling matches.

"Well, I was pretty fair at spelling, but I was better at psychology, or suggestion, or telepathy, or what ever you wish to call it.

"When a word was offered the boy next to me, before he had time to spell it I'd whisper out the wrong spelling, as though I were preparing myself for the word, should it come to me. If the suggestion worked, the boy above me would misspell the word as I had whispered it and then I'd have a chance to spell it right.

"That way I got to the head of the spelling classes all the time and stayed at the head. And so, at the end of the school year, I was asked to wish for a prize, and I wished for a banjo."

RATHER TRICKY.

Mr. Saunders stopped the straightaway narrative to point out he had undertaken to discuss his success and he didn't propose to standardize the account, just to make it conform to regulations.

So, he asked another detail of how he had advanced himself by plain cunning.

He was working again in the sawmill—this time collecting $1 a day for carrying hot barrel staves. He and a negro were assigned to the carrying job.

"I learned quickly that the negro is rather slow to get a grip on a load of hot staves," he recounted. "So I always would hoist my end quickly and when the negro picked his end up I was able to throw the entire weight on him.

BITUMINOUS COAL RESERVE DECREASES

Washington, April 6.—The bituminous coal reserve of the country, still approximately one-third less than it was a month in advance of the beginning of the miners' strike last Spring, showed signs on March 1 of getting lower, according to figures made public by Fuel Distributor Wadleigh.

Hearst Takes Over Newspaper in Baltimore

Baltimore, Md., April 6.—The Baltimore American publishes the following announcement:

"This newspaper has been purchased from Mr. Frank A. Munsey by William Randolph Hearst, who publishes daily newspapers in Atlanta, Ga.; Fort Worth, Texas; Washington, D. C.; New York city, Rochester, Syracuse, Boston, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland and Seattle.

"Mr. Hearst will endeavor to manage this newspaper in connection with his many newspapers throughout the nation, for the benefit of this great city and of its citizens."

HOUSE OF DAVID HEAD REPORTED A FUGITIVE

Lansing, Mich., April 6.—Benjamin F. Purnell, head of the House of David, is a fugitive.

Sheriff G. C. Bridgeman, ordered to serve papers in the proceedings to dissolve the colony, reported his inability to find the head of the cult. He said he had left the jurisdiction of the Michigan courts.

Unlawful and immoral practices have been alleged as part of the teachings of the colony.

$1,000,000 FOR HUB GETS 3D READING

A third reading of the measure to permit Boston to borrow $1,000,000 above its legal debt limit was ordered by the House. The measure was opposed by Representatives Shattuck and Walsh of Boston, who declared the new police headquarters, for the construction of which the money is to be used, should be paid for within the debt limit of the city.

ORGAN OF G. O. P. RAPS DOCTRINE OF LORD CECIL

Washington, April 6.—Lord Robert Cecil's tour of the United States to stir up sentiment in favor of the League of Nations further emphasizes the danger of American participation, the National Republican, organ of the Republican National Committee, declares in its latest issue.

Lord Cecil

This publication is generally regarded in Republican circles as directly reflecting the views of the administration.

Describing Great Britain's champion of the league as a "sincere, earnest, well-meaning man," and a "good Englishman," who "means well for his own country," the National Republican continues:

LORD CECIAL MISTAKEN.

"It may be that he really believes that the League of Nations is a good thing for America, too. If so, he is mistaken in this, and the American people know that he is mistaken. He will be well and courteously received, of course, but the people here will not forget that while a sincere and earnest man who is mistaken is often worthy of respect, his doctrine may be all the more dangerous because of a false weight given it by his sincerity and earnestness.

"It is difficult just now to see how league propaganda in America is going to be as effective, even, as it was in 1920, when it lost by more than 7,000,000 majority. Certainly the situation in Europe today is not calculated to convince any one of the effectiveness of the league as a producer or a conservator of peace.

LEAGUE IGNORED.

"No great question involving the interests of the major powers in Europe has even been offered to the league for settlement. The league was not consulted in the Turkish imbroglio and is not consulted in the major problem of Europe today—the question of the Ruhr.

"The international newspapers in the United States point with pride to the fact that the league has arranged for a loan to Austria which may prolong the life of that distracted country. Of course, this is something, even if it is not a major accomplishment, but if the league, failing as a preserver of peace, is to become merely a medium for the promulgation of foreign loans, then this is another good reason why the United States should keep out of the organization.

"Uncle Sam has had enough experience with loans to Europe and certainly the people would not sanction a move to make this country the financial angel of the League of Nations.

"We might, indeed, lead Europe enough money to pay its reparations and other debts, and then guarantee to enforce with men and more money the agreement arrived at, but it is easy to see where we would come out in the end. We are holding the sack now, but when we got through with that venture we wouldn't even have the sack.

"European nations may disagree among themselves on their domestic issues, but there is one point on which they always unite and that is getting everything possible out of Uncle Sam. Therefore, it is not hard to guess who would be the isolated one after we had joined the happy family for a little while.

Paris Pall Bearers and Undertakers Threaten Strike

Paris, April 6.—Among the strikes which are threatened in Paris just now are those of hospital attendants, undertakers, dentist's assistants and professional pall bearers.

All of these "professions" claim that their pay has not risen with the cost of living.

TWO MILLIONS CLAIMED BY SALTUS HEIRS

New York, April 6.—Alleging they were being deprived of more than $2,000,000 left them by the will of John Sanford Saltus, who died last June in London, three residuary heirs have asked the surrogate's court to compel the executors, William Allen Butler and Estelle E. Campbell, of this city, to make a final distribution.

The residuary legatees—Amasa W. Saltus of Concord, N. H., Rollin S. Saltus of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., and Charles H. Ludington of Ardmore, Pa., allege that they have repeatedly demanded the remainder of their inheritances but have been refused all except a preferred $100,000 each.

The Saltus estate was valued at $3,785,328, of which $940,000 in specific bequests has been paid out, as well as $408,000 to the residuary legatees.

PLEADS FOR ADEQUATE U. S. ARMY AND NAVY

America must have an adequate army and navy, if she is to continue to enact a leading role in world affairs, according to Congressman John Jacob Rogers, who addressed the City Club on the subject "Dangers Ahead." He predicted a reduction of the army from 125,000, the present status, to 100,000 when the next army and navy appropriations bill comes up in Congress. Major-General James G. Harbord, formerly chief of staff of the American expeditionary force in France, gave a diagram lecture of the battle of Soissons.

Why Spring Brings Out Freckles and Blemishes

How Mercolized Wax Fools Them Off.

The sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines at this season is attributed by scientists to the "active ray," which is unusually active during spring. Where the skin is so affected by this influence if one will procure an ounce of ordinary Mercolized Wax at any drug store, apply a little before retiring, like cold cream, the treated skin easily be overcome. When the wax is washed off next morning minute flaky skin particles will be removed, the entire surface is tinted with a delicate flesh color that conceals effectively all blemishes, leaving the complexion soft, clear, fresh looking and youthful.

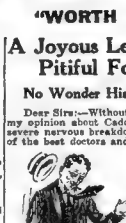
A Joyous Letter of Health From Pitiful Four-Year Anemia Victim

No Wonder His Heart Beats Love and Gratitude!

Dear Sirs:—Without solicitation, without reward, I want to express my opinion about Cadomene Tablets. About six years ago, I had a severe nervous breakdown, which lasted four years. I went to some of the best doctors and nerve specialists in St. Louis, and used their different medicines, and changed doctors several times during the four years. I also tried massage and all kinds of "baths," but steadily grew worse. And then I tried a "wages lead" of various kinds of medicine. More than 100 relatives and friends can prove the truth that I am writing. During these four years I was not able to do any work; could seldom leave my home alone, lest I would drop in the street, which I did several times.

During the four years of my sickness, before I took Cadomene Tablets, I was a nervous wreck. There was a spot on my spine, like a nudge was driven between the joints. Every part of my body ached. I lost appetite; could not sleep for a week at a time; would have sinking spells and be dizzy for hours. My eyes would blur, and sometimes I lost the power of motion. Would break out in cold sweats; would have nervous chills; was constipated, and had every kind of ache and pain imaginable. It was misery upon misery for four years. I felt as though I was going to die at any minute. I had to sell out my business and move to a farm thinking the change would be of benefit, but obtained none.



How He Happened On Cadomene

The way I got to taking Cadomene Tablets was that I glanced over papers and would try anything that seemed suited for a reasonable time. I was about to give up when I ran across a Cadomene advertisement in the St. Louis Post Dispatch. I started taking Cadomene at once, and after taking the first box, I felt some results. So I kept on and when four boxes were taken, I was able to do any kind of work, and soon thereafter I was fully restored to health.

I am a new man; and am today, two years after my horrible experience, a happy, successful breeder of pure-bred Duroc Jersey swine, and I owe all this to Cadomene.

Overwork, worry and dissipation caused my breakdown. Cadomene Tablets have restored my life. I have recommended them to several of my friends, and they, too, have received wonderful results, and I think the public should know these facts. You have my consent to publish any part or all of this letter. I want no fee and am seeking no reward. I already have them in the form of health, strength and happiness. If more people were taking Cadomene instead of spending large sums of money for worthless "experiments" they could be helped for a few dollars just as I was. Will close with 40 confidence in Cadomene Tablets. Yours sincerely, Louis Kraus, De Soto, Mo

BOSTON'S COLLEGE BASEBALL SEASON OPENS TOMORROW

HARVARD WILL TACKLE BOSTON UNIVERSITY

Greater Boston's college baseball season will open tomorrow afternoon when Boston University and Harvard play at Soldiers Field.

Harvard's varsity baseball squad will be reduced to twenty-four players soon. Of the two dozen, twenty-one will be taken South on the Spring trip, which starts a week from Saturday, for games with the Naval Academy, William and Mary College and Catholic University.

Eight pitchers have been retained, but there are three who are now ineligible, but who may resume their conditions next month in time for the big games with Holy Cross, Yale and Princeton.

The trio are Earl Brown, the colored flash, who is the best hurler in college; Phil Spalding of Milton, ex-football player, and Eddie Herrmann, the Californian, who was the mainstay of the Freshman nine a year ago.

At present Kenneth Hill is the leading eligible hoxman, but much attention is being given [illegible] who will be retained [illegible] opening part of the season. They are Robert Carding, [illegible] Browne & Nichols; Sid Joe Young, who pitched for the second team last year; Johnny Toulmin, third baseman on the freshman team back; Richard Norris, [illegible] structed first baseman; Brewster Hicks and Jack Anastos of last year's scrubs, and Thomas Oakes, a portsider of dubious ability.

Three catchers were retained, Leonard Larrabee, Adolph Samborski of Westfield and Ray Keegan. Keegan captained the second team for two seasons. Larrabee was a sub to Jere Murphy last year and Samborski was the cub catcher last season.

Only Seven Infielders Are on the List

Only seven infielders are on the list. These include three subs, Frank Hill, Lloyd Mann and J. C. Hoss. The regular infield consists of Captain George Owen at first base, Jack Hammond, last year's freshman captain at second; Percy Jenkins at shortstop and Charlie Buell at third base.

The outfielders who are on the list are Lewis Gordon, Duncan Thayer and Joe Clark, all of whom won their letters in 1922, and Arnold Hoffman, Roger Doherty and George Burgess, former freshmen outer gardeners.

Clark Hodder Is a Promising Candidate

Clark Hodder of Newton is a promising candidate for the outfield, but he is ineligible for scholastic reasons. If he gets off probation, he is likely to put up a good scrap for a regular job.

Harvard's batting order is as follows: Clark, cf.; Thayer, lf.; Gordon, rf.; Jenkins, ss.; Owen, 1b.; Hammond, 2b.; Buell, 3b.; Larrabee, c., and Hill, pitcher.

EAGLES BEHIND WHEN RAIN STOPS IT

New York, April 6. — The New York University baseball team led Boston College, 4 to 1, at the end of the first inning when a drizzling rain prompted Umpire FitzSimmons to stop the contest.

Boston College was represented by Patten on the mound and Sullivan behind the bat.

The Eagles scored their run when Foley singled, stole second, went to third on Wilson's bunt and scored on a single by Comerford.

In the New York half of the inning, Stanley singled to left. Dorkin got to first on a bunt, and Stanley went to second. Hirschfield sacrificed to right. Stanley went to third. Dorkin stole second and Flynn fanned. Toorock doubled and scored on a poor throw by Patten to McIntyre. Dorkin went to third and scored on a passed ball by Sullivan.

WHITE SOX WIN AND EVEN GIANTS SERIES

Vicksburg, Miss., April 6.—The White Sox evened the series with the Giants and won, 10 to 8, in eleven innings.

Hooper's double, Eddie Collins' single, four passes by Pitcher Jonnard, and a single by Graham gave the Sox five runs in the eleventh.

CLAN SUTHERLAND WILL PLAY THE WORSTEDS

By ART CURLY.

The Clan Sutherland soccer aggregation, of Brookline, fresh with recent victories over Fore River and Charlestown, will journey to Forge Village tomorrow afternoon to tackle the classy Abbot Worsted eleven in the third round of the popular American Cup series.

Bill Timoney

The winner will meet Fore River in the next round at Quincy.

When able to field their strongest team, the Clanamen have the best working eleven in the Boston district and are capable of making any team in the State travel. Most of the new stars, added to the team during the indoor season, will be eligible for tomorrow's fracas, and while the Worsteds are the general favorites to win, the local outfit can be depended upon to give the Villagers a close battle.

Bill Timoney, considered by most critics to be the foremost exponent of the dribbling art in this neck of the woods, will be in the forward rank for the visitors, and Bill Ross and Lindsay will be given a busy afternoon keeping track of him.

Local interest will be centred around the third round National Amateur Cup battle, which will be staged at Marcella Street Playground between Roxbury and Charlestown.

It is expected that the Neck aggregation will give the young Roxbury team a tough argument, for "Doddy" Craig, "Dobbler" Lyons and Jimmy Doig will be eligible for this game.

The last named player may blossom forth as goalie for the Sullivan square outfit, but he has held down the position between the uprights before.

The winners of this match will meet the Abbot Worsted Juniors in the next round.

The Industrial League will get into action tomorrow with three games on tap, and must be started at 2.30. At the last meeting of the league, it was voted that all games must start on time and that a fine will be imposed on those responsible for any delay.

Fore River will go down to Lynn and attempt to creep nearer the top of the standing by defeating the General Electrics on the Cooper street grounds. The Quincy club management has raked up a fairly respectable aggregation of footballers, and if the new men can be induced to stay, Fore River has a good chance to finish close to the top.

Has An Open Date

Albert F. Higgins, the faculty coach of the Lexington High School baseball nine, has an open date for May 23, at home, that he is anxious to fill.

NEWTON HIGH HAS FIRST SCHOOL BATTLE

By FRED C. LANE.

Newton High's baseball team will usher in the 1923 scholastic baseball season on Saturday at Claflin Field, Newtonville. For an opponent Newton will have the Tufts Pre-Medical School.

Howard Whitmore

The game is little more than a practice session and will not go down on the books as a credit, or loss, for the Garden City aggregation. Coach Allie Dickinson of Newton arranged this game for information.

Newton fans will root for Howard Whitmore, premier orange and black hurler, to start the contest, but unless the weather is exceptionally warm there is little chance that he will take the mound.

Whitmore was one of the best pitchers in the Suburban League last year, particularly on hot days. The present weather means that Newton fans will watch one or more of the less experienced hurlers.

Mickey Tedesco and Whitmore are all who remain of the Newton team of 1922. Tedesco may play shortstop, as it is one of the weak spots.

Although the squad lacks veterans, there are several good prospects anxious to show their wares. Howard Oakes is a smart player about second base. His hard hitting will play an important part in Newton's record.

Dick Vaughn, "Goodie" O'Donnell and Art Shaw, because of brilliant work as members of last year's second team, are labeled for permanent jobs on the first nine.

Cronin, catcher last season and picked as All-Scholastic choice, is lost to the team because of the age rule. His loss weakens the team.

Many scholastic stars entered Tufts last Fall, so it is evident that many of them will wear the new uniform.

William Ott Elected Basketball Captain

At a meeting of the letter men of the Boston College High basketball team, William Ott was elected captain. Ott played guard on the Maroon and Gold team. His election was unanimous.

Newton High has listed Hyde Park High as an opponent for Thursday afternoon. The game will be played at Claflin Field, Newton.

An effort is being made by Nathaniel J Young, director of physical education, to regain the lost popularity in sporting events among our city schools. At a recent meeting, six high school teachers from the various schools in the city were named as coaches of the several teams of their respective schools.

Bart. M. Bessom of English High and Edward M. Wilson, hockey instructor of English, were appointed to train their squads at the Fenway. Francis J. Hogan of Mechanic Arts and Edward F. Mickey of Latin School will use the same grounds. Walter L. McLean of Commerce will work on the Columbus Avenue Playground. Henry P. Moore of Dorchester High is listed to tutor on the Dunbar Avenue grounds.

Large Squad for the Peabody Baseball Team

Arthur McGuire, Paul MacGregor, Steve Maistrellas and Bernie Ginsberg battle for the first base job. For second base there is James Boyle, Peter Passas, Augustus Martinac, Tom Hayes, Tony Chipinikky and Ed Anderson.

COBB HURT WHEN STRUCK BY A BAT

By Universal Service.

Augusta, Fla., April 6.—Ty Cobb, manager of the Tigers, was painfully injured when he was struck by a bat in practice.

He was passing Pitcher Sylvester Johnson, who was batting out flies, when Johnson missed a vicious swing at the ball and the bat swung around and hit Cobb a terrific blow on the right leg above the knee.

Physicians said that although very painful, no permanent injury is likely. Cobb will be unable to play in exhibition games for several days.

ITALIAN AND GREEK TO CLASH AT THE ARENA

George [illegible] Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, has agreed to wrestle [illegible] Greek champion, in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Boston Arena next Thursday night rather than be blacklisted by the Gil Howard management.

The signing of Calza and Kotsonaros gives Boston and New England fans the most important mat match to be staged in two years in [illegible] has been demanding a finish bout [illegible] for more than a year. The Curry real New England [illegible] featherweight champion, demands a bout with Red Chapman of Dorchester. Vic Richardson, Curry's manager, says Chapman has refused several tempting offers to battle his protege.

"Of course you can hardly blame Chapman for getting cold feet when Curry's [illegible] name is mentioned," said Richardson. "The records show that Curry [illegible] has beaten Young Manty of New Bedford three times, while Manty [illegible] Chapman at Lynn.

"Curry would undoubtedly give Chapman a boxing lesson. That is what Red is trying to avoid by doing the sidestep act.

"Curry has only lost two bouts during his sensational drive for ring fame. Billy DeFoe and Young Manty gained the awards. DeFoe has since refused to meet Curry while my protege has whipped Manty in their last three starts.

"As Curry can make 125 pounds, I do not believe that anybody can question his claim to the New England featherweight title. For [illegible]remore, Joe stands ready to defend his laurels against all comers."

New Interest in the Heavyweight Class.

The signing of Floyd Johnson and Fred Fulton for a bout at the Boston Arena on April 16, under the direction of the Arena A. C. has aroused new interest in the big fellows.

This writer started a torrid controversy when he asked the fans to name their lists of the first five heavyweights.

W. A. McKeen of South Boston writes:

"I was surprised to see one of your Cambridge readers put Harry Wills first in the heavyweight class. He is dreaming, or trying to win a horsehead prize in my opinion. Jack Dempsey is out a mile in front, and could lick Wills, Willard and Firpo in one ring.

"My selections are: Dempsey, Johnson, Willard, Wills, Firpo.

"Incidentally, the Sam Langford of twelve or fifteen years ago could have beaten the whole bunch. What do you say?"

James Adams of No. 384 Saratoga [illegible] writes:

"My choice is Dempsey, Carpentier, Wills, Johnson, Gibbons. I am sure that if Carpentier succeeded in [illegible] he could defeat any living heavyweight except Dempsey."

KOTSONAROS IS A WINNER; SO IS STASIAK

It was a whale of a show at the Grand Opera House. Stanley Stasiak defeated Farmer Bailey and George Kotsonaros tamed over Karl Vogel in the two feature bouts held under the direction of the Howard management.

There was hardly any choice between the two big attractions and both matches proved to be of high calibre.

Kotsonaros made short work of Vogel. In all stages Vogel used holds to very good advantage, but Kotsonaros clamped on holds.

While Vogel was attempting to pummel the Greek Kotsonaros made a jump at the German grappler's neck and toppled him to the mat with a flying mare in 32 minutes and 15 seconds.

The second fall was short and easy for Kotsonaros when he took his opponent and lifted him with an overhead crotch hold and body lift. The time was 11 minutes and 15 seconds.

Bailey came on the mat full of fight and gave Stasiak a sweet battle.

The Farmer made Stasiak hustle and it was not until Stasiak lifted him up with an arm crotch and body lift that the match came to a close.

The fall which the Pole took won the match and flattened the Farmer for the count. Bailey was advised not to resume. The time was 29 minutes.

A. Pino and Frank Lurich of Carbonite signed for one fall to a finish. Pino defeated Lurich in a hot [illegible] with a half Nelson and body [illegible]

Unless many other boxers who have invaded our city, Thomas did not ask for a match with Eddie Shevlin, Dave Shade, Georgie Ward or Mickey Walker.

FRAZEE ADMITS HE GOT A BID FOR RED SOX

New York, April 6—Harry H. Frazee, president of the Boston club of the American League, admitted here that he had received an offer from Chicago interests to purchase his holdings in the Red Sox, but declared that so far as he was concerned the deal "was off." Frazee declined to reveal the source or details of the offer.

"No negotiations of any kind for the disposal of my share in the Boston Red Sox are in progress at the present time," Frazee said, when asked about a report that a deal was about to be consummated. "If I have been approached a number of times, as a matter of fact, by prospective buyers. The latest was from Chicago, but everything is off, so far as I am concerned."

Frazee has declared several occasions that he was ready to sell his Boston stock, but "at his own price."

CHANCE CALLS ON O'DOUL TO WORK AGAINST LOUISVILLE

FIRST OF THREE GAMES WITH THE COLONELS

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Dawson Springs, Ky., April 6.—Howard Ehmke, Jack Quinn and Alec Ferguson, all having shown their pitching wares, Frank Chance today calls upon one of his left-handers to demonstrate his fitness, and Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, recently acquired from the Yankees, has been chosen to oppose the Louisville Colonels in the first of a series of three games, to be played here and there in the State of Old Kaintuck.

Lefty was set back a bit with a sore arm during the month at Hot Springs, but has now rounded into form and, although Chance will not use him the full nine innings today, he will take a chance on him during the first five or six frames, sending either Dave Black, another southpaw, or Bill Piercy, a right-hander, to relieve him.

Chance until today has been tickled to death at the way his Red Sox have been coming from behind, but he now is about fed up on that, for in the battle with the Memphis Chicks they came from behind one night to win, four to three, after ten innings of play, the Chance until today, has been tickled to death with the display of fighting qualities of his team when it is behind or needs a run to win a battle.

They've been demonstrating their ability to do so for lo, these many game, and today Frank wants 'em to go out there and pile up such a lead that it will not be necessary for them to indulge in fancier come from-behind tactics.

The Memphis battle was tight from start to finish. Alex Ferguson went nine innings and ready to go a tenth, but gave way to a pinch-hitter, and "Hy" Fowler, a native son, finished the fray.

The Red Sox runs, the result of a walk, a double, a force out and a smashing triple by Bub McMillan, loomed large and lustrously as the game progressed to ripen way.

But in the fourth the Chicks by a single and a triple climbed into the run column. The Sox got back that run in the following frame when Devormer's single, Ferguson's sacrifice and Fewster's safe blow were followed by a great sacrifice fly from Joe Harris's bat.

The game consisted along without further scoring until the last of the ninth.

Then things happened.

With one down there came two singles. A strikeout followed. But with two out Jack Milner was sent in to pinch hit for Memphis and Jack leaned far back on his haunches and plastered Ferguson's initial offering clear to the right field wall for an easy sweisnacker, which sent home enough runs to knot the score three to three.

ROBINSON ASKS FOR SHOW DOWN

Much has been said about this match, and, after waiting to hear from the Roxbury Adonis, Robinson has become peeved.

George Robinson

Says Robinson: "If Pat McCarthy is willing to fight me, let him put up a forfeit to bind the match. I don't expect him to put a large sum, simply suggest that $100 be put in the hands of any Boston boxing editor."

MACK TO PILOT AMATO WHITE

Tony Palazola, manager of Jimmy Amato Wh[illegible] has turned his welterweight over to Eddie Mack, and from now on White will battle under the Mack colors. White and Doyle being in the same stable and of the same weight created a little jealousy, and Tony thought it best to let White go.

Jimmy A. White

Jimmy Amato is one of the best of the new crop of welterweights and he will be ready in a week's time to battle Eddie Shevlin, Dave Shade or George Ward.

BRAVES FINISH STAY AT ST. PETE CAMP

By NICK FLATLEY.

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 6.—The sunshine training camp of the Braves was to be locked up for another year tonight. This was the ultimate day of Florida torridity in St. Pete, which has proved to be one of the best weather spots we've bumped into in a number of years on the dizzy Southern baseball trails. It was necessary to call off only one day's practice in two years, and you can't get around that record.

That lonely vacation night have seen a workout had not Manager Mitchell decided that a rest would do his pupils as much good as exercise. It hasn't been decided definitely that the club will come back here again, but it's ten to one, or something like that, it will.

Conditions here are perfect, but there will not be a single kick if the ball yard is manicured just a little bit. The going is rather soft in the garden, but it won't take much jack or time to erase that bad feature of things.

Connie Mack is bringing his Athletics to Sarasota, just across the bay from here, next year, and plans for the early eight-club Florida League of rookies from the major clubs are well under way.

Two Workouts in the Last Day's Exercises

The last day's exercise consisted of two workouts, the afternoon taking the form of one of "those" games. Mitch has had a pretty good chance to get the real dope on his youthful athletes and is just about ready to wield the well known axe. He has half a dozen kids who aren't at all [illegible] for the big test yet. The promising ones will be let out with [illegible] attached.

Jocko Conlon, who seems to have the varsity all cinched, could not play in yesterday's game against the St. Pete club, because of a [illegible] ankle. He bumped into Larry Kopf in practice, and the runner got quite a wrench. There's nothing serious about the injury, though, and the midget will start against the Senators at Tampa tomorrow, if he [illegible].

Woburn Boy Is Most Popular Brave in Town

The young man, with his happy Irish grin, is the most popular Braves in town. He has personality to burn, and the ability to be flashy, but he's a real recruit if he stays long on the team, during the season.

We asked Manager M. just what he thought of Jocko, and he un[illegible] the following "Jocko's got to be in there. He can hit that baseball. He's a good fielder and learns fast. And he can hit that onion."

Hitting Is the Real Thing in National Game

Hitting is the thing in baseball and a million faults will be over looked if an athlete swings a mean bludgeon. Conlon hasn't a million faults, or even a few as far as we have seen.

His arm isn't the strongest in the world, but he gets the ball there. It hasn't been decided whether to start him eventually at short or second, but start he will unless one of his legs falls off.

The St. Pete contest was a Brave victory, 7 to 6, and gave Southpaws Braxton and Matthews a chance to do a lot of pretty good pitching. The little leaguers only collected five swats off the pair. Matthews, who is a side armer, has quite a lot of stuff and good control. He has a fork ball too, that is very bothersome to the would be slugger.

Captain Bill Southworth, who is never worried much by left handers, asserts that Matthews is as hard to hit as Reuther. The last, to Captain Will's mind, is the toughest bird there is. When William says that much about a kid, it means something.

Dick Rudolph takes the second squad over to Jacksonville tonight for a charity game with the Senator Seconds. His crew will remain there and be gathered by the North bound Braves Sunday evening.

FRIEDMAN BOOKED FOR THREE BOUTS

Abe Friedman, New England lightweight champion, was matched today to box three times within the next month. On April 23 he will swap punches with Johnny Gray of Brooklyn for twelve rounds at the Broadway Exhibition Association of Brooklyn. At the Fourth Regiment Armory of Jersey City on April 30 he will go over the ten-round route with Irish Johnny Curtain, then he will hop out to Chicago and battle Carl Tremaine or Pal Moore.

"JO" BYRNE, NOTED TURFMAN, DIES

Providence, R. I., April 6.—Joseph S. Byrne, formerly of Seekonk, Mass., prominent turfman, died in an East Greenwich hotel, where he had lived recently. He was known over New England as the "Jo" Byrne. He is survived by his widow, a sister and a brother.

CLINTON SIGNS FOR NEW YORK BOUT

Johnny Clinton, crack New England lightweight, who knocked out Jimmy Carroll of New York at the Pioneer Athletic Club on last Tuesday night in five rounds, was matched today to battle Ray Milch all at the Broadway Exhibition Association of Brooklyn on Monday night, April 16. This match was originally scheduled for the 9th of April, but has been put back one week.

KEARNS PICKS WILLARD TO BEAT JOHNSON

By SAM HALL.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 6.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, does not hesitate to pick the man he thinks will win the Jess Willard-Floyd Johnson fight for the Milk Fund in the Yankee Stadium, at New York, on May 12.

Dempsey did hesitate, because he has been asked to act as a judge, and may officiate, and because as champion he does not care to single out favorites among his challengers. He was non-committal.

Not so with Kearns. That worthy was cornered at his hotel and asked what he thought. His prediction is this:

"I do not care to name the round, but I think Willard will win via the knockout route. He's a big fellow with experience, and he will be ready for a tough fight. When Willard gets moving his arms and he do[illegible] time—I will take a whack at a fighter to trim him. I hardly think Johnson has the experience to triumph in such a severe test.

Knows That Jess Is in Good Condition

"Reports that Willard is not going in condition I know to be untrue. I have had men watching Jess, and they tell me the big fellow never was better. You know what that means. He will be at his real fighting weight and a great, big, tough fighter when he squares off with Johnson.

"Billy McCarney, who was with Dempsey and me at Toledo and hated Willard because of previous dealings, is wild about the former champion now. Of course, McCarney was with Willard on his tour, but that is over now and Billy is telling what he thinks when he says that Willard at last has realized that he must be serious in his training.

Fighting Spirit of the Kansan Has Flamed Forth

The fighting spirit of the giant Kansan has flamed forth and believe me, if Johnson is good enough to win from Willard, then I will at once start preparing Dempsey for the Iowa man.

"Dempsey and I will be at the ringside," confided Kearns. "I actually believe that among the challengers that will start on May 12 the man we must watch most carefully will be Willard. I always have said he could fight and I still believe it. He did not have a chance to show his stuff at Toledo because he was knocked dizzy with the first punch."

Dempsey Stood Round, but Made No Comment

Dempsey stood around while this was going on, but made little comment. All he said was:

"Willard is a big tough fellow.

The champion looks tough and is tough. He is prancing about town like a featherweight. Jack likes it here in California, where his home and his folks are, and is not going to leave Los Angeles until business calls him away.

Kearns is tickering with vaudeville and movie people. He had nothing to say about Dempsey matches, except that the Shelby, Mont., stunt with Tom Gibbons is not look so good.

HOLY CROSS NINE IN HARD LUCK ON RAIN

Philadelphia, Pa., April 6. — Rain cheated Holy Cross out of a victory over Villa Nova.

With the score 3 to 0 in their favor, a heavy rain stopped the game when Holy Cross opened for the fifth inning and the contest was called off.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

[illegible] years go filling [illegible] days and days of [illegible] hopes seem [illegible] seems made to pass go [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] many birdies [illegible] hear and still go undaunted. Oh, it's a game for valiant hearts and sturdy arms to play, a game for all man's skill and arts, all day and every day I love to try new theories out [illegible] problems one by one for proof, I [illegible] to see how near and [illegible] read the signs. But some [illegible] when the days is long I like to sit and dream, while twilight shadows slowly throng and first stars glow and gleam. I leave the burdens grown too near and, looking back I see them through a sunlit veil; for the child I used to be! Oh, it is good to get away for just a little space, back in the misty realm to stray, that dear, enchanted [illegible] To find the wealth of [illegible] one changed by Time's [illegible] touch to see that cloud as [illegible] sore, the smiling skies as [illegible] Like one refreshed [illegible] the sickening draught of water sweet as rum, when deep of memory's cup I've quaffed, my faith comes back again. And when I turn from tender dreams to face the world of men, my flame of courage brightly gleams, my hope burns high again. So, often when the twilight falls and day has grown too long, I conjure up my nursery walls and hear my Mother's song. So many joys that I would gain, so many ships at sea; Ah! it is good to find again, the child I used to be!

Bobbie and His Pa

By W. F. Kirk

MA, I sed to Ma last nite, how can a Dickshunary walk?

A Dickshunary is a book full of words, Bobbie, sed Ma, & it cannot walk any moar than the cubbard full of dishes, Bobbie, sed Ma.

Well, I sed, there must be sum mistak, our teecher told us her father was a walking Dickshunary.

Did you tell her yure father was likerwise? sed Pa.

No, I sed, I never brag about my fokes in skool. I am not stuck up about my parents, I sed.

Well mite you be, tho, sed Pa. Well mite you be.

I am glad he is not, sed Ma. One stuck up Mail in our family is too much, sed Ma.

But you dident tell me yet how can a Dickshunary walk, I sed.

That is jest a Fraze, Bobbie, sed Pa. It meens that a person knows the meaning of so many words that he is like a Dickshunary

What is it, a Fraze? I asked

A Fraze is a Grupe of words, Bobbie, sed Pa. When I say you talk too much, Bobbie, sed Pa, that is a Fraze

Bobbie dosn't begin to talk as much as his cool-headed father sed Ma, or his sweet fawned mother, sed Pa.

I have to say a word or 2 now & then myself Ed Fence, sed Ma, but mount of the time I am setting back listening to you, sed Ma. You addermit that you are a walking Dickshunary, sed Ma, & you mite as well addermit that you are a talking Dickshunary, also, too, sed Ma

Well, well, well sed Pa, I seem to be getting called down by my dear Life Partner sed Pa. I suppose the time is hanging heevy on yure hands when we are not having sum kind of a Jam, sed Pa. But you cant start anything with me sed Pa kind of quick. I was looking at you last nite in the theater, sed Pa, & you looked so bustful to me that I made up my mind then nevver to quarl with you agane.

Oh you dear boy, sed Ma to Pa, in all this world there is no other hero like you, sed Ma & then Pa went & looked in the looking glass, he looks in it a awful lot, it must be kind of tiff for Pa's eyes to be all the time looking at Itself

DID J'EVER?

Did J'ever try to kiss a girl at a masked ball and then discover that it was your wife?

Did J'ever put you Winter overcoat in hock on the day before a Spring blizzard?

Did J'ever arrange to buy a piano on the installment plan with the expectation of getting a raise at the office and then have the boss fire you the next day?

Did J'ever get caught playing five-and-ten poker by your wife just after you had bawled her out for spending too much money?

Did J'ever fill an inside straight when one of the other players was sitting pretty with a full house?

Did J'ever sit on a freshly painted park bench and then have a cop arrest you for walking on the grass?

BONEHEADERS

"The plot thickens."

"It's a small world after all."

"You must come over to see us."

"Isn't he a darling baby."

"Sweets for the sweet, you know!" (When passing the sugar)

"Olive oil, my dear." (A smart leavetaking).

"Don't take any wooden money."

"Must be weather, whether or not."

"If you can't be good be careful."

Having His Way

Johnson presented himself at the church with his infant son for the christening.

"Peter Ananias Johnson," was the reply.

"Ananias? I refuse to christen the child in that name. Do you know who Ananias was?"

"I don't know who he was; and, what's more, I don't care!"

"But Ananias was the greatest liar in history."

"Well, that's nothing to me. My baby ain't no liar, so what's the difference? I want him christened Ananias because I like the sound of it."

"I won't do it. I will christen the child Peter Jeremiah Johnson." The minister was as good as his word, and as he repeated each name he sprinkled a little water on the infant's face.

"And I rub out that middle splash," said the father, hastily. He rubbed his sleeve across the child's wet face and sprinkled a little more water over it.

"I rub out that middle splash, and christen him Peter Ananias Johnson. And that settles it."

Medbury Says—

DOCTORS say that walking is the best exercise in the world, but you have a hard job making a girl believe this when you're taking her home from the theatre.

SHE loves to walk, but she'd rather get into a taxicab and coast for a while.

SHE wouldn't object to taxing the street car, but there's liable to be only one vacant seat and she'd want to sit down, too.

OF course a man wouldn't think of sitting down and letting his girl stand up unless he knew her very well.

AND a man has to know a girl pretty well before he'll suggest that they go home on the street car.

WALKING is a wonderful sport, but taxicabs are more convenient than corn plasters.

THEY save your feet, but they give you a stiff neck from watching the meter.

ONE guy said the meter tossed up dimes just like it was popping corn.

BUT a fellow doesn't always take the girl home in a taxicab, sometimes he's married to her.

HE doesn't ask her if she wants to ride on the street car, he tells her.

THE honeymoon is always over when a man and his wife start going home on the trolley.

A MAN doesn't have to take his mate on a four-dollar taxi ride to prove that he loves her if he's sincere, they can get just as chummy on a nickel.

ONE dame said to her husband, "Before we were married you always used to take me home in a cab." He says, "Sure, that's why we're riding on street cars now."

WHILE they were engaged he wanted to display his wealth. Whenever he'd take her home at night he'd call two taxicabs. She'd get in one and he'd get in the other.

WHEN they'd get to her house he'd tell both cabs to wait, but as soon as she'd slam the front door he'd go out and discharge the machines and then walk home.

WALKING is no doubt a great exercise, but you have to marry a girl in order to make her believe it.

JUST IN FUN

The fellow who brags about his armless all year round, usually is stricken dumb when confronted by the income tax collector.

The Department of Agriculture reports there are several million less horses in the United States than last year. And the banks report there are that many more mortgages on the old home to make up for it.

Preacher denounces girls for rolling their stockings, says a report. But it looks to us that while we roll ours the girls have a perfect right to roll their own.

Today's Winners

PHILIP MEADE, care of Cavendish Company, No. 124 Milk street, Boston:

"I wanted to show a friend what a wonderfully intelligent animal my dog was, so I wrote out a check, hid it under a stone in the Fenway and showed the spot to my dog. We then went home, and I sent the dog out. Would you believe it, he not only went back and found the check, but cashed it for me and brought back the money."

"A dentist in Maine found his teeth needed attention. He cleaned up his tools, administered a dose of gas and started to work. When he came to, there wasn't a tooth left in his head. That's the story, and it's as false as the plate he wore when he told it to me."

MRS. F. C. PIKE, No. 5½ Ashburton place, Boston.

"We have a goldfish in a bowl. My boy brought home some turtles. I was afraid the two turtles would snap and bother the five goldfish and spoke of it. Very much to my surprise I looked in the bowl this morning and what do you suppose? The turtles were riding the goldfish on their backs. Each turtle had a goldfish on his back and the other three were lined up on the side of the bowl waiting for their turn."

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE

IT'S ALSO SAUCE FOR THE GANDER

By Alma Sioux Scarberry

"TAKE those fool earrings off or I won't go a step of the way."

Mrs. Fair stood aghast at the sudden explosion of her husband. For six months, it was the first time he had ever raised his voice to her.

"Why, Tom—" Mrs. Fair faltered. "I—I thought you liked them. Make me take them back to wear to the ice-pull on Tuesday. They're real coral, and so pretty with—"

"I don't care a damn if they're diamond-set. I don't want my wife to fashion the fool fad and fancy foible of an empty-headed flapper."

"Oh, very well, Tom." The bride was too hurt to argue further—besides, she wanted to go to the party very badly, and something in the way Tom set his jaw made her think diplomacy best. So she tossed the bits of coral on her dressing table.

Mildred and Fred Patton, old friends of Natalie and Tom, were waiting for them when they drove up to their house in a taxi. Just as Natalie expected—Mildred's first words were "Oh Nat, you've forgotten your new earrings."

"Oh, I—I—forgot them," said Natalie meekly.

"And—oh, dear, I bought them especially for you to wear with that gray outfit tonight, Natalie—you simply must have them," Mildred tortured. "we'll go back and get them—we've plenty of time."

At the Reception

"Tell me—did Tom forbid you to wear those earrings tonight?"

"And you—the poor little silly goose you are—were as meek as a fish on Friday I suppose."

"What could I do?" Nat wiped a tear away and threatened to overflow with them, "he took off his coat and was going to stay at home."

"Humph" snorted the irate Mildred contemptuously. "I'd like to see Fred pull any of that cat and mouse stuff over on me."

"Bless Millie," the little bride sobbed. "I—I just couldn't bear to have trouble with Tommie. So many marriages are failing now, and I love him so. I think I'd die if we couldn't get along."

"Fifie, you don't get anywhereby being a——" and right in the middle of the sentence Mildred suddenly stopped and emitted a peal of laughter.

"Oh, Nat, that's the funniest thing I ever heard—I—I——"

"Have you taken leave of your senses, Mildred Patton?" Natalie shook her shrieking friend. "People will think you're crazy."

"Listen, listen." Mildred answered, when she was able to talk coherently. "I thought a real [illegible] next Friday."

"I—I—want to for?—about that?" Nat stared blankly.

Oh, can't you see—Tom the able bodied, Tom the scorner of feminine foolishness, carrying a cane—picture it——"

"Oh, that is good—and I only hope he carries it." Natalie joined her friend in the laugh that followed. "Say, it is a go."

And the two joined their husbands in the drawing room.

Mildred and Fred were invited to dinner on Tom's birthday night—sure enough, among the gifts was the brand new cane from Fred to Tom. Tom's pleasure was equal to that of a seven-year-old boy receiving his first genuine that actually ran.

"I say," Tom fingered the gold headed walking stick lovingly—"That's a beauty—a real beauty. How'd you ever think of it Fred, —just what I wanted."

"Say, girls—let's go down to the Ritz for a few dances" he suggested in the best of spirits. "It might as well make an evening of it."

"Oh, we'd love to," said Mildred.

Could Not Believe

The husband looked at her as if he could not believe his own ears —"of course you are fooling—"

"Oh, am I?" Natalie threw her cape roughly into the corner and sat down on the edge of the bed.

"Why—what's the matter with you—are you—"

No, I'm not, but listen here, Tom Fair, I'm not going to stand for quite that much. Such utter nonsense—such idiocy. Imagine you—you carrying a cane! Do you think I want people to think I married a cripple—you—an able bodied man being so foolish—"

"Nat, oh, Nat," called a voice from the porch later. "What's keeping you folks?"

"I—I was powdering my nose," grinned Tom a minute later as he stood in the doorway with his arm around his wife swinging his new cane.

"Oh, Natalie, those coral ear rings look too stunning for words with that blue gown," Mildred gushed as the four sat around a table at the Ritz a few minutes later.

"That might be so," Fred squeezed his wife's hand under the table, "but you haven't any idea how handy canes are on dark nights."

IF you were best on playing a joke on one who had not always acted in the particular way you had hoped she would act—if ever since she was big enough to walk where boys were watching her with hearts that beat high she had walked, all too coolly—what would YOU think if once more she disappointed you?

Would you feel that she had a heart if she just couldn't see the heart you placed in her path?

Or would you feel that maybe—like Cupid—your disappointment was too keen for words and too vital for thoughts?

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

Ralph Lacy Summons Anne to a Meeting With Jim at His Office

By Ann Lisle

"ANNE, dear, I know you're big enough to forgive us for not asking you to join us at lunch. You see, dear, Neal and Pat are also omitted. It's just Harrison. You're Harrison, too, dear. But this Jim and his sisters—our youth together and the clan feeling somehow needs expression without even our nearest and dearest. You don't mind, do you?"

"Just Jeanie and Jim and I. You aren't hurt, are you, Babbie?" pleaded Phoebe.

"Of course I'm not," I said heartily. "Run along, you dears."

I tried to mean it. I tried to be the big, generous woman I'd been called. But this was my Jim's first lunch party at home—and I wasn't in a mood to do justice to any job. I decided to go out for a malted milk and a brisk walk.

In Frank's Charge

Leaving the office in Frank's charge I trotted out and walked a mile. Then, in pursuance of my rigid plan, I marched into a drug store and forced myself to drink the coffee and malted milk I didn't want. Another brisk constitutional, and I hurried back to the office, glad that the hour was over and that I could get back to work —the one thing which would distract my mind from its own personal trials.

Hardly, however, had I managed to get down to work when Ralph Lacy called me on the telephone.

"Hello, Mrs. Harrison," he said briskly. "Can you drop everything and start down here at once?"

"Must I?" I asked, finding myself with a sudden distaste for making any kind of effort.

"I think you must," came back with genial insistence. "Your husband is on the way here. I got him started on his way jump the minute he called me on the wire. I think you'd better start right along."

"I will." I said without further parley. "See you presently. Good-bye."

Then with a feeling of tense anticipation, I got ready and went out to ask Frank to hail me a taxi. Then I stopped to give a message to Miss May and Betty.

"The A. L. Harrison Company seems to be composed of everybody but A. L. H. these days," I began apologetically. "Here I am off again."

Miss May looked at me with something in her eyes that verged on a question. But Betty got up and came over to take my hand in both of hers.

"This may be hard on your partner," said Betty, with so much of understanding in her face that I felt as if we'd been transported back to the days when I was a timid and blundering bride, and she my aide and comforter. "But as far as I'm concerned, it's a grand chance for me to prove my mettal. I'm afraid think I might have looked like one of those clean sweeping-white-new brooms you hear so much about. But I'm hoping that in some measure I'll make up to Miss May for your absences."

"Of course it's never the same without Mrs. Harrison," said Miss May, with one of her quick flares of composure. "But if anyone could cover the big discrepancies and gaps and things you leave when going to attend to the big affairs we both hear bustling you—it's my Betty Winston, bless her!"

"Taxi, Ma'am" announced Frank from the doorway.

"All right!" I called. "Run down, please, and tell him I'm on my way."

Then I turned to the two who were so nobly standing by and I said earnestly:

Two Loyal Friends

If ever there were two splendid, loyal friends and co-workers, I've managed to draw them in the not always so fair and generous lottery of life!"

"Run along with you," laughed Betty unsteadily. "We have lots of fun on the job, but we can't afford sentiment."

It was just the right note. It gave me a sense of security. However things go amiss, I have at least that to count on—my business and its established and interested allies. Stopping only to draw the check in full payment of my note and to instruct Miss May what to do if it were presented after I got to Mr. Lacy's, I rried down to the waiting taxi and set off for Mr. Lacy's office.

All during the ride I tried to fortify myself for the meeting with Jim. I had no idea what his attitude would be, and I felt that I must meet him more than half way on any basis he selected. When I got to Mr. Lacy's office I found Jim in earnest conversation with Mr. Lacy. He arose to his feet when I entered with the courtesy Ralph Lacy showed, but he did not come near me. This, of course, could be ascribed to his dignified avoidance of any demonstration before a third person. But Ralph Lacy's cordial greeting made Jim's icy demeanor hurt me the more.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Jad Salts at First Sign of Acid Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead or your back hurts, if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

By Ann Adams

DEAR MISS ADAMS.

My husband and I were having lunch in a public cafe. As we were leaving, two ladies accompanied by their escorts were about to enter. My husband allowed me to pass on to the street, unattended, while he stayed behind, until the other party of four had entered. He claims that he did right. I claimed that while the ladies were accompanied that it was his place to continue out with me, and allow their escorts to look after them. I would like to know which of us was correct.

A. F. M.

YOU are right. I have seen many men do this, and it always seems ridiculous. Why should your escort, who owes you the first duty, have you unattended in order to pay a secondary courtesy to another party?

And have you noticed that when they join the lady whom they have left unattended (with nothing to do but take a long time to draw on her gloves, they always wear an ill-not very-polite air?

FOXY GRANDPA STORIES

HOW HE ALMOST SAW A MERMAID

SO you want me to tell you a story about when I went around the world? Well, I'll tell you about the time I almost believed in mermaids.

Bunny, Bobby and I were on a big steamer going from Marseilles, France, to ports Kong, China.

We had passed through the Red Sea, and were on our way across the Indian Ocean, hoping to get to China some day. The days were pretty long and we were beginning to get bored.

"I wish something exciting would happen," Bunny yawned.

Bobby exclaimed. You know that deck tennis is the game people play on a big ship and it is really great fun.

Well, we lounged in our deck chairs looking off to sea. There wasn't a ripple on the ocean. Not even a ship relieved the quiet blue stretching of to the far horizon.

Suddenly we all sat up together.

Bunny dropped one ear backward. He always does that when he's thinking hard.

And I got out my binoculars. "What is it?" cried Bobby.

"Don't you think we'd better tell the captain so he can lower the lifeboats?" I asked.

"I'll run and tell the quarter-master on the bridge!" Bobby exclaimed. Then Bobby stopped him. "What's the rush?

Bobby and I almost fell over each other trying to tell Bunny what we saw. Together we gasped:

"It's a woman with a baby in her arms! There must have been a shipwreck."

Bobby and I were certainly upset. But wise little Bunny—of course he should know more about animals than we do—said:

"It's only a dugong."

Bobby not understanding him said.

"Dog-gone what?"

This made Bunny sore:

"I said dugong—a whale that's called a dugong. Haven't you ever heard of this kind of whale?

You know that all whales feed their young like animals that live on dry land, don't you? And this particular kind of whale not only does that, but when she travels with her baby she holds him between her two big front fins—just like a woman holds her baby."

"I really don't blame you, for away off there across the water that whale does look like a woman swimming with her baby —for all the world it does! In fact, it is said that the dugong started men in ancient times to believing there were such things as mermaids—from seeing just what you see now."

(In tomorrow's story Foxy Grandpa will tell how he met Mr. Poms.)

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

USE MULSIFIED

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (whether in cake or powdered form). It is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

You get three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any druggist. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives out Mulsified.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

Bisurated Magnesia Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Stops and Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy Stomachs and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know from these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try one effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, or milk, but the pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or three compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and that "lump" in the stomach that seems to follow everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little Bisurated Magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow.

ROYAL ROMANCES

CAESAR AND THE FAMOUS CLEOPATRA

By Barbara Bayne.

CLEOPATRA, born 68 B. C., was the last of the Ptolemaic sovereigns of Egypt and was the seventh queen of her name which, in Greek, means "Glory of her race." Though usually referred to as an Egyptian, she was pure Macedonian Greek. From Plutarch, a contemporary of her time, we learn that her chief charm was "a wonderfully seductive, melodious voice." Also that she could speak "any language that she pleased." From which we must infer that Cleopatra not only had marvelous beauty, as her profile stamped on coins would indicate, but that she also had refinement and culture.

That she was courageous, plucky, daring, we glean from the history of that first meeting with Caesar. Withal, she was a woman a man might love to distraction.

The world in general has formed a mutual picture of Cleopatra as an Oriental voluptuary. But the reverse side of the picture shows her the devoted mother of four children, seeing war against Rome for seventeen years to obtain the rightful inheritance of her son Caesarion; the two men in sequence who acted as her husbands about when the world has rolled scandalized eyes, were both recognized by Egypt as her consorts.

She was Caesar's acknowledged consort in Rome, the little Caesarion acknowledged as his legitimate heir. Only his tragic death prevented his plans to divorce Calpurnia and legalize their union. Caesar was, in a manner, King of Egypt.

The first meeting with the dainty little queen of Egypt captivated Caesar and held him with a chain of gold as long as he lived, for at the same time he had undoubtedly conceived the idea of winning the fabulously rich, twenty-one-year-old queen as a simple means of bringing Egypt under the control of Rome without warfare. For Julius he meant to have, fair means or foul.

Else why, during her temporary absence from Alexandria, did he invade her capital and take possession of her palace? The evidences is plain that Caesar was a brilliant opportunist. He was a cultured, fascinating man of the world, and thirty-three years older than Cleopatra. From appearances Caesar held the high hand in the game of matrimonial hearts—and Cleopatra was not altogether to blame for subsequent events.

With her petite form rolled in a blanket her giant Sicilian servant walked into the presence of the mighty Caesar. Her silvery, mocking laughter, her beauty, her audacity, charmed him.

Both inspired at first by a political motive, each came to feel a genuine affection which endured until his death. It is supposed that the jealous Calpurnia destroyed his will in favor of Caesarion.

Cleopatra sailed to Egypt to mass her army and resources to fight for the rights of her son. Henceforth she was consumed with a desire for his success, since the knife of an assassin had ended her glorious dream of being queen of the world.

The Origin of Luck

THE word "luck" does not occur in English before the sixteenth century. It really is a short form of geluk, or in modern German, gluck, which means happiness or good fortune.

THE ENEMIES OF WOMEN By BLASCO IBANEZ

Start Here Today This Engrossing Story of Life and Love from the Master Pen of One of the World's Greatest Novelists

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez,
Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and Other Novels of World Renown

THE Colonel stepped forward with the two loaded pistols. He gave one to the Prince. The other he put in the Lieutenant's right hand, and instructed him how to stand—with his arm bent, holding the weapon high—so as to present only the narrow side of his body to his adversary. Once more he dwelt on his warning. Martinez must be careful not to make a mistake! Remember! One . . . Two . . . Three . . .

"Ready!" said the Colonel finally. "Fire! . . . One . . ."

A shot rang out. Martinez, who was thinking only of the terrible three, had fired. But his shot went wild, and he saw the Prince standing unharmed before him, much taller than he had ever seemed before. He could see the black hole of Michael's weapon, and above that hole an eye which with a look of cold ferocity, was choosing a point on the Lieutenant's body to which to send the obedient bullet. And with unconscious arrogance Martinez turned on his heel, so that he presented as a target not his profile, but the whole breadth of his body.

Ready to Die

None of his seconds saw this. For their eyes were focused on Michael, who was the personification of death.

Time contracts and expands for us, according to our emotions. Its measure and rhythm depend on the state of the human mind. Sometimes it gallops along at a dizzy rate over the faces of clocks that seem to have gone mad; at other times it collapses and refuses to proceed, and a thousandth of a second embraces more emotions than months and years of ordinary life. The witnesses felt as though the hands had been paralyzed and the sun was remaining forever motionless. Time did not exist.

"Two," sighed the colonel, and it seemed to him that his lips would never cease uttering this word.

Lewis had forgotten everything but the present moment. The mountain from Bordeaux, bending forward, was leaning on his wounded foot, unconscious of any pain; the other officer swearing between his teeth and shaking his rattan cane until it bummed. The doctor, with professional instinct, was stooping over the surgical case that lay at his feet.

Lubimoff was going to kill Martinez! All of them were sure that he was going to kill him.

A Tense Moment

An implacable expression of security and of ferocious coolness radiated from that man, with arm upraised so motionless and pitiless. The expression on his Kalmuck face was of such deep fatality, his one eye tightly shut and the other open, that they could see an imaginary line drawn from the mouth of the pistol to the breast of the man opposite, and see that the tiny sphere of lead was going to follow with inexorable accuracy.

Proud of his authority, the Prince, with a sort of savage playfulness, postponed the moment of dealing death. He had his enemy in his claws, and could toy with him during these three moments that were as long as centuries.

In the dizzy coincidence of images whirling through his brain he could see the Princess, his mother, beautiful and arrogant, as she was when she recounted to him as a little boy the greatness of the Lubimoffs. Then he saw his father, the General, sombre and kindly, saying in a rough voice: "The strong man must be kind." As he thought of his father his pistol swerved slightly, but immediately he corrected his aim.

Then in his imagination a train was slowly passing—French soldiers. He saw Castro and the insolent red-haired fellow who was offering him a seat. Another train advanced in the opposite direction, an endless train that kept coming from the depths of the ocean. Hurrahs, whistling, dark blouses, blue collars, little caps that looked as though made of paper. "Good afternoon, Prince!" The luminous smile of a pale virgin—Lady Lewis with her two blind men, handsome and tragic.

His pistol fell. Above it he could see the entire body of his adversary, that obscure soldier, condemned to die before long, no doubt, from wounds received in a land that was not his own, for a cause which was that of all men.

"Three!" said the colonel.

But before he could finish the word a shot rang out. The grass stirred at intervals along the soil as the invisible bullet ricocheted into the green stems.

The scythelike stroke passed close to the legs of the director of the combat; but the colonel was in no mood to notice such a thing. His childlike joy made him run hither and thither. His frock coat seem to laugh as its tails flapped up and down.

A Strange Attitude

He was so happy he almost embraced Martinez. The lieutenant must shake hands with the Prince! A reconciliation was necessary.

But the young soldier refused to take his advice. He had his doubts about the way the conflict had ended. The Prince had fired at the ground, and he was not going to let him spare his life in that.

"Young man," said the Colonel, with an air of authority, "you are new in such affairs. Let yourself be guided by those who know more and give the Prince your hand."

Immediately the Colonel went in quest of the Prince, who had not moved from his original position. Michael had thrown his pistol away and was covering his face with his hands.

"Come, Prince! What's this? Be calm! Perhaps a good glass of whiskey——" The Colonel heard a sob of anguish, the choking of a stifled breast.

Respectfully he drew away the Prince's hands, which were shielding his face. It was a dull, brick-red, shiny with sweat and tears. Michael was weeping!

The colonel recalled the dead Princess in her days of stormy humor, when, after an explosion of wrath, she would wring her hands and ask forgiveness, weeping hysterically.

Followed Meekly

As he gently took Michael's hand, he felt that the Prince was following, meekly, without any will of his own. Martinez was waiting a few steps away.

They shook hands.

And then something unexpected happened, which produced a long silence of surprise and amazement.

Michael bent forward, knelt down, and raised to his lips the hand he was holding in his own, with the same humble gesture that the serfs of the steppes had used in the presence of his powerful ancestors. Then he kissed it, moistening it with tears.

For a week after the duel, Lubimoff never once left Villa Sirena. In his conversations with the Colonel—his only companion in this solitary life—he avoided making any allusion to what had occurred in Lewis' castle. He feared the curiosity of those who had heard of the duel and its outcome and entertained a wild hope of immersing himself at Villa Sirena until the whole affair should be forgotten.

But his loneliness soon began to weigh upon him like a torture. He was getting tired of walking about his garden all the time. It seemed to him narrow and monotonous. Besides, Lewis' niece, abusing her privilege, came every afternoon, with a constantly renewed escort, of wounded Englishmen.

She ran about with them through the avenues amid the caress of the exotic birds, wearing great garlands of flowers for her soldiers. Meanwhile, he was obliged to hide in the upper stories of the villa to escape this childlike joy, which seemed to him to have something funereal about it.

Where were the Enemies of Women now, those comrades of his dreamy happiness? He wondered about Castro especially. He had asked the Colonel for news of him twice without getting any information. The Colonel never saw Castro any more in the Casino; doubtless he was keeping away out of fear of gambling. The Prince had a feeling that the Colonel knew something more and was refusing to talk from motives of discretion.

A Lonely Man

One morning the weariness of his imprisonment finally galvanized him to action. After all, why should he not go in quest of his friends? Perhaps if he were to take the first step he would succeed in renewing relations with them and he establish his former life. He decided to seek out Spandorf first because he lived nearest. Besides, the pianist would surely know where Castro was staying. Perhaps they were all living together.

He left the street car in Monte Carlo and, passing the Casino, followed the Upper Boulevards. He had a vague idea of the house. The pianist was the "guardian of the tomb" above the Sainte Devote ravine.

TACKLING A JOB

HOW ONE OUT OF TWELVE WAS CHOSEN

By William A. McKeever
Widely Known Lecturer and Writer and a National Authority on Training of Children

WANTED—14-year-old boy to work evenings after school and Saturdays; good wages. Apply at 1220 Main at 5 p. m.

The foregoing want-ad brought exactly a dozen boys. After an hour's hearing one was chosen, the others dismissed.

The fortunate boy was rather less attractive than several of the others, and he was slightly undersize. So I determined to know what points of merit gave him the decision.

"Yes, I can tell you gladly," said the employer. "He had money in his pocket and said he was willing to do anything. Practically all the others were broke and they were all afraid they might be given too much work for their money."

Don't go broke. Be willing to tackle anything. These are the two points which favored the "lucky guy," as two of the others designated him. On the first point he scored only $1.15, which was the sum he had in his pocket.

"I always carry a small amount of money," said the young clerk boy. "Somehow it makes me feel more like asking for a job when I don't just have to get one."

That is the right idea. The boy with some loose change in his pocket has self-respect and courage, while the one who is broke is troubled with two of the greatest enemies to success—doubt and fear.

Tackle anything. That is another sound motto for a boy out to learn as well as to learn. He is glad to be given an easy difficult job. He knows that mastery here means a bigger job for the next time.

The boy who carries his own money and is never broke is less likely to cheat or steal from his employer. The beggar always is tempted to lie and steal and he generally yields to the temptation.

The boy who goes out looking for a nice, dainty piece of work soon becomes sorry for himself if the task proves a bit heavy. He is usually unfortunate in having some one at home to warn him against "working too hard" or otherwise arousing his ill will toward the business to which he is assigned.

Tackle anything. There is no disgrace in failure. The dishonor comes from whining or refusing.

Ten men recently canvassed, all heads of big institutions, all proved to have been boys who were willing to take such a risk. Four of them started as errand boys at a few dollars per week and struggled to the top. The country is short of "tacklers" today—not merely in football but the game of life. We have an over-supply of those softies who doubt and dilly-dally.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

Mary Blake Says:

OTHER things being in accord, persons born on this day have a love of nature and a delight in studying the laws of life. They may be inclined to a secluded life. There is a fluent expression of thought, both in speaking and writing; plenty of courage to encounter hard work, but almost no chance to accumulate a fortune.

A peculiar combination of aspects exists, not good, and not exactly bad. There is likelihood of errors and forgetfulness.

A person born on this day will be extravagant in habits, but fortunate in business.

You are probably a person in whom emotion plays as big a part as intellect. No matter what you elect to do, you will lead an easy, pleasant life because of the chance acquaintance of whom you will make lasting friends.

You have several highly developed senses and chief among them the sense of touch. In fact you might make a splendid sculptor. You are fond of music and particularly when it has a marked rhythm. Your nature is affectionate.

As I had heard of your wondrous cures, I came and saw you for the first time on the 6th of November, 1920. After the seance, I felt immediately a little better. WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"The gentle craft."

Is a title applied to shoemaking. It is found in an old play "George Greene" (1599) which alludes to the fact that King Edward IV. once drank with a gathering of shoemakers and say that for that reason shoemaking shall be called the gentle art.

"Era of good feeling."

Was the period following the conclusion of the War of 1812, and the exile of Napoleon, when the world was at peace after years of strife. The phrase was used first by the Boston Sentinel, July 12, 1817.

"The coast is clear."

This familiar way of stating everything is in readiness for some move is from "Nymphidia," by Michael Drayton (1563-1631).

"Next to the originator of a good sentence is the one to quote it."

He who is quick to recognize the worth of an idea is second only to him who begets it, according to Emerson in "Letter and Social Aims."

This Will Ward Off And Break up Colds

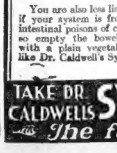
THE two ailments that people generally regard as of the least importance are in reality the cause of most serious illnesses and of the greatest proportion of deaths.

They are constipation and common colds. Many doctors now believe that colds, tonsilitis, a touch of malaria will cause constipation, instead of constipation being their cause. The fact remains that you seldom have a cold without constipation, due to general congestion. The only way to avoid colds is to keep up your vitality. You usually catch cold in the winter if you are run down. Therefore in cold weather exercise more; eat more fatty foods; drink four to six glasses of water a day; keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

You are also less liable to colds if your system is free from the intestinal poisons of constipation, so empty the bowels regularly with a plain vegetable laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.



ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking Cosmopolitan to have a free sample worthy laxative that anyone in the family can use often and safely. I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me about it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

At the first sign of a cold, at the first few warning sneezes, take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin and the congestion will be gone in a few hours. Don't wait until the cold has a grip on you. Mr. Henry Dean, Jr., of Rochester, N. Y., cured a stubborn cold in just that way, and Mrs. Alice Corbbrey of Haskell, Okla., uses it effectively for all the small ills of her family, such as constipation, biliousness, headaches, dizziness, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is safe to give to infants, and all children like it. Before you again resort to cold remedies containing narcotics try a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist will supply you, and the cost is less than a cent a dose.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

High tariff or no high tariff, I believe our imports will increase more than our export.

I believe the time is coming when our imports will exceed our exports.

I believe that we are approaching the end of gold imports and nearing the gold export stage.

* * *

For these main reasons:

We are the richest nation on the face of the earth.

We are enjoying a prosperity not matched in any other country.

We are a creditor nation to the extent of billions of dollars.

Nations, like individuals and families, spend more on comforts and luxuries when they are rich than when they are poor or only indifferently well off.

We are morally certain to spend more on imported luxuries and comforts in future than we ordinarily spent in the past.

Our debtors cannot pay us in gold and must contrive to devise ways and means to pay us in goods or service—and it will be mostly in goods.

We have so much more gold than we can put to genuinely advantageous or profitable use, that redistribution of some considerable part of it is inevitable as soon as conditions become more stable and dependable in other countries.

Look what is happening already.

Unfortunately, we can't bring the picture up to date because Mr. Hoover's Department of Commerce in a praiseworthy attempt to reach the ideal, has landed in a lamentable snarl. We have no import figures for even the first month of this year. At the time Washington was publishing the import returns for December of last year London was issuing its import and export returns for March of this year.

But taking such statistics as are available, what is the tendency revealed?

Our excess exports over imports for 1922 was considerably less than half the excess during 1921, only one-fourth of what it was in 1920, and only one-sixth of our excess of exports in 1919.

The following brief table tells quite a comprehensive story:

(000's omitted)

	Exports	Imports	Excess of Exports
1922..	$8,584,709	$5,116,000	$3,468,709
1921..	4,485,081	2,509,148	1,975,933
1920..	8,228,016	4,278,481	3,949,535
1919..	7,920,435	2,904,394	4,016,041
1918..	6,149,087	2,031,212	4,117,875
1917..	6,233,812	2,952,467	3,281,345
1916..	5,482,841	2,981,033	2,501,808
1915..	3,550,913	1,778,005	1,772,908
1914..	2,114,597	1,778,005	336,592
1913..	2,484,018	1,702,593	681,421
1912..	2,880,217	1,813,078	1,067,139

Since the beginning of this year our exports have not been increasing. February total of $333,600,000 was the lowest since September and the February total sank to $311,000,000. The March returns, of course, are not yet available.

Smart Advances Are Scored by Sugar Stocks in Strong New York Market

MELLON CREDIT DECLARATION AIDS BULLS

Smart advances were scored by the sugar stocks in a strong New York market today. American Beet Sugar added 2 points, while point or more gains were made by Cuba Cane preferred, Punta Alegre and Cuban-American Sugar. Manati Sugar was up 2¾, at 7¼.

Virginia-Carolina Chemical's three issues all made new low for the year, off 1 to more than 2 points. The common, down to 14¾, compared with a year's high of 26¾, and the preferred at 43½ contrasted with a 1923 top of 69.

Secretary Mellon's declaration that there was plenty of credit available for investment purposes, and the optimistic tone of the weekly summary of the Federal Reserve Bank, encouraged a resumption of speculative operations for the rise at the opening.

In the Boston stock market Island Creek Coal was one of the most active stocks, again setting a new 1923 high, up 2 at 114. United Shoe was active and up fractionally at 51. Hardy Coal sold at its highest since listing, up a fraction at 28¾.

BIDS FOR STOCK.

To Mrs. H. M. W., Boston—There is no evident significance attached to your receiving offers for your food cracker stock that show a spread of $8.50. It is unlisted, you know, and the market for unlisted stocks is hardly to be compared with those on the Boston or New York Stock Exchanges. The fact that your stock seems to be in special demand at this time should encourage you rather than make you feel timid.

PACKARD MOTOR CO.

To M. P. M., Victor street—I am not bullish on most motor stocks, for I believe they can be picked up lower before long.

The Packard Motor Company manufactures the twin-six and single-six passenger automobile bearing its name, and various models of motor trucks. Its plant at Detroit, Mich., covers eighty acres of land, while its factory buildings cover 1,000,000 square feet.

The present corporation was formed under the Michigan laws in 1916, succeeding a Virginia company of the same name, organized in 1900. Its present capital includes $14,789,900 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock, in shares of $100 par value, and $23,770,200 of common stock, of a par value of $10 a share. No funded debt is at present outstanding, the balance of a $10,000,000 8 per cent. note issue having recently been retired. The book value of the common stock, on the basis of figures furnished me from the company, is about $15 a share.

The company made its best earnings record in the year ended August 31, 1920, when net income amounted to $6,395,468. The year 1921 was the worst on record, operations resulting in a deficit if $987,866. Earnings for the year ended August 1, 1922, amounted to $2,111,825. For the first quarter of the present fiscal year net income was $2,553,164.

The regular 7 per cent. dividend has been paid on the preferred stock since 1911. The common stock resumed dividend payments in 1918, after a five-year interval, with a payment of 7 per cent. Eight per cent. was paid in 1917 and 1918, 14 per cent. in 1919 and 10 per cent in 1920. Dividends were then reduced to 4 in October 31, 1922, a payment of 5 per cent. being made last year. An 8 per cent. rate was placed in effect last January, after a 100 per cent. stock distribution. A dividend of 50 per cent. in stock was paid in 1919.

Since its admission to trading on the New York Stock Exchange in December, 1923, the preferred stock has sold as high as 90 and as low as 83. It is at present quoted to yield over 7 per cent. The common stock was listed on the same date. It has sold as high as 14½ and as low as 10½. At the present price the return is around 5 per cent.

The company is now producing at the rate of about 2,250 vehicles monthly, according to my information. This output exceeds all former production records of the company. Earnings are officially estimated at more than $4,000,000 for the six months ending February 28 last, which constitute the first half of the company's fiscal year.

BROWN-BECKWITH GETS CANDY FIRM

Earnest E. Smith, Inc., No. 52 Devonshire street, Boston, specialists in New England securities, make the interesting announcement that the Brown-Beckwith Company of Dover, and Manchester, N. H., have taken over the White Mountain Candy Company of Concord, N. H. This acquisition on the part of the Brown-Beckwith Company gives them about 400 new customers, an added sales force and an additional equipment.

Brown-Beckwith Company was organized to acquire the properties and business of several long established, successful companies manufacturing bakery products, frozen creams, beverages and sugar candies. During the last three years the company has increased sales ten fold and is now the largest producer of its kind east of Boston.

The several departments that have been added to the bakery of the Brown-Beckwith Company create a decided operating advantage and unusual earning power. Delivery of soft drinks, hard candy and ice cream is made by the same fleet of twenty trucks and expressed to the same customers as the bakery products. This cuts the cost of distribution, which is a larger item of expense than all others put together.

The company owns two new factories and sixty acres of land. The larger property is the bakery at Dover. The other property owned is four miles south of Manchester.

Woman—When Is She at Her Best?

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

This is a very important question—we know the answer to it, but we shall tell only part of the answer, because we want to stir up discussion and make the reader think and write.

Every woman after twenty-two begins to worry over this question:

"Am I getting old?"

Unless you are a woman with pink cheeks, curly hair, a small waist and a great desire to please, you have no idea what a serious question that is. Many a sleepless night it brings.

After the twenty-two-year-old stage comes at thirty-three the question:

"Can a woman retain her attractiveness unimpaired after thirty-five?"

All women ask themselves that question when they get to thirty-three, and most of them take a gloomy view of the chances.

At forty each woman makes the pleasing discovery that she does not look more than thirty-five, and that not a soul is willing to believe that she is more than thirty-two. Then she begins to ask herself THE really important question:

"HOW LONG CAN I MANAGE TO LOOK THIRTY-FIVE?"

Since that is the question that every woman of forty asks herself, we must assume that woman in her wisdom has decided on thirty-five as the best age. Is that true? Is not thirty-five younger than the age of perfect development?

We can dismiss as trivial the infantile worry of the girl who thinks she is old at twenty-five. That is really too young an age for marriage in a civilized land. We can disregard also the wide-eyed appeal of the young woman of thirty-three or four who pretends to think she is getting on.

But we must be serious about the main topic, we must discuss with corrugated foreheads these questions:

When is woman at her best? When should she begin to give up shirtwaists and take to brocade, when must she sit back with a resigned expression as the front door bell rings, when—sad and pitiful thought—must she pretend that she no longer cares for admiration, and that she only "wants to see the young people enjoy themselves?"

Think about it and express your views to your friends or to us. Perhaps we shall hire some experts to discuss the subject for your benefit. Meanwhile here are facts for you to go on:

The higher the type of woman, the later comes the best age.

An oak tree and a cabbage develop on different lines—same of different sorts of women.

A woman amounts to nothing until her brain is well developed. If she has no brain she is useful and ornamental, but not important or worth discussing here.

The brain to a woman is what the light is to the lighthouse. No woman can be at her best until her mind reaches full development. That age varies probably between thirty-five and sixty—as the race improves the age moves back. The girl most pleasing to the Bushman is about thirteen years old. The woman who bosses men in Europe and persuades a Duke of Devonshire to marry without hope of an heir is of middle age.

Generally speaking, we should say that a woman very small around the forehead must be correspondingly small around the waist to make a success, whereas the woman with a broad forehead can have any sort of waist she likes or none at all and still marry the rich banker's son.

You must bear in mind that woman's modesty prevents her from deciding questions for herself when she is so deeply concerned. She does not ask "When am I at my best?" She asks "When does proud man, with his bristling mustache and his wide mind, consider me most attractive?"

Since man must be considered, it is necessary to remark that the better the man the less difference it makes. A wise man knows that extreme youth is risky, although he may conclude to undertake the task of developing the budding soul. The foolish man likes only what combines silliness with color effect. He does not count.

The Abbe de Chateauneuf was justly described by his biographer as a wise owl. He fell in love with Ninon de l'Enclos when that lady was old enough to be the mother of a general. But he was happy and Voltaire, who, as a schoolboy, called on the old lady with his friend the Abbe, tells us pleasant things of her. She was unquestionably getting scrawny; but she had a brain, and our enlightened minds, though pained at her goings on, must admit that that brain kept old age at bay.

The American woman ought to be mentally and physically at her best between forty-two and fifty. By that time she knows enough to listen patiently while a man talks about himself—no woman is at her best without that knowledge. By that time she has got over most of her foolishness.

The American woman is usually badly in need of repairs at the age mentioned, but that is due to candy, ice water, buckwheat cakes, spoiled children, fretting, lack of out-door life, tight corsets and dyspeptic husbands.

That is all we have to impart on this occasion. The old age of the writer would earn forgiveness for his frankness, if he could be seen.

Promotion After Death

What Does the Ghost Think?

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

General Maunoury was a brave, intelligent French fighter. One of his victories in the late war probably saved Paris from the Germans. Now that he is dead he is made Marshal of France.

To him to honor a living man they often confer nobility upon his great-great-grandfather, dead long ago, thus creating a long noble lineage for them. Increasing a man's rank after his death seems new in modern history.

Will General Maunoury's ghost, spirit or soul ever know anything about the honor? And, if it does know, will it be gratified or indifferent?

The practical French would say: "That isn't the question. We honor his memory and please his survivors and his family. That's all we can do for him."

THIS TRIBE HAS NEVER LAUGHED

They have kept themselves just as they were thousands of years ago. They have never been known to laugh.

Scientists have tickled their feet to such a degree that an ordinary man would have been in misery. Tickle as they would, the learned men could not even get a chuckle out of a single subject.

A Vedda has never been known to steal, and, what is stranger, can't conceive of anyone else taking another man's property.

Although now they are associating in some degree with civilization, the Veddas have not assimilated any of the unfortunate qualities which are general the world over.

Defends Taxi Rates

Editor Boston American:

I notice in the press that the taxicab companies of Boston are accused of charging excessive rates. May I state on behalf of the Checker Taxi Company that our policy has always been to give the public the lowest possible rates consistent with reliable service. On commencing operations about eighteen months ago, we offered a rate which was considerably lower than any other taxi company in Boston, at the same time abolishing the charge for back mileage.

We have promised that according as the volume of our business grows, we will further decrease these rates, and everything points to our ability to do this at an early date. It is entirely up to the public themselves. If we get the volume we can afford to reduce the rates and will do so without hesitation.

In comparison with New York, I may say that the only difference is in the initial flag throw, which is 10 cents less than ours, and in the charge for extra passengers. A single passenger travelling one mile in New York is charged 40 cents, two miles 70 cents, three miles $1, and so on. Our rates are one mile 50 cents, two miles 80 cents, 3 miles $1.10. Our charge for each extra passenger is only 10 cents, no matter how long the journey.

In Chicago, Philadelphia, etc., where large volume of business allows of still lower rates being charged, this is counterbalanced by a charge of 20 cents for extra passengers. On the whole, I think it will be found that the Checker rates compare more than favorably with those in other cities, and with a continuance of the ever-increasing support which we are getting from the thinking public it will very soon be possible for us to reduce them to a figure which will put Boston right in the forefront as regards economical taxicab transportation. Increased volume of business will alone enable us to do this, therefore the whole solution rests entirely with the citizens of Boston.

FRANK SAWYER,
President, Checker Taxi Co.

SOVIETS AND PRIEST STAND BEFORE A FIRING SQUAD

By Herbert Kaufman

THE Reds did it. Bolshevism stands beside Monsignor Butchkavitch and shares his death before a firing squad.

Russia needs his services—blind men, all.

This operation is performed in a minute and prompt results are reported to follow. Sudden silence from the surgeon who recently had so much to say about pigs' eyes suggests that we reserve opinion. Credulity is entitled to a few neutral zones.

Even if a French glider has learned the secret of bird flight and electric lights are found burning on atmospheric energy, some improbability still exists.

How to Make Your Own Coal

Professor Scammell of the Radium Institute at Dover furnishes the recipe for coal. Take a lot of trees and vegetable matter, select a convulsion of nature, cover your forests and jungles with hot lava and cook until carbonized.

A handy formula for Methuselah. Folk with less time to spare and without the facilities indicated, while pleased to know how fuel is made, would prefer to have some other professor kindly inform them how it is to be had.

Baron Munchausen tunes into the news with a statement that Dr. Figu Roskoff turns the air into a slingshot and hurls articles, regardless of weight, almost any distance.

A German newspaper warns us that the mere possibility of employing such incalculable forces would place the universe at the mercy of their discoverer. Another item for one's mental neutral zone.

Ambitions Would Still Bristle With Bayonets

Lord Robert Cecil believes he can convince America that disarmament and international agreement will insure world peace.

If all the guns and battleships from Halifax to Hankow are sunk civilization won't be safe from violence until men disarm their minds.

So long as secret thought and national ambitions bristle with bayonets war will recur.

Until laboratories are destroyed and invention forbidden the razing of arsenals is an empty gesture.

Treaties Can't Bind Human Nature

The less great countries protect themselves, the easier for little ones to invade them.

Pacifists, leaguers and other idealists are inspired by noble sentiments, but seem forgetful of history.

Ministers may sign treaties, but human nature can't be regulated by Cabinet decision. The instincts of centuries must first yield to education and evolution. Lord Robert will find failure at the end of his rainbow chasing.

When five men in every ten are invulnerable to the whispers of expediency, when racial aspirations die, when hate corpuscles disappear from bitter blood streams, when prejudice counsels with justice, when diplomacy plays its cards face up and the color line is wiped from society, kingdoms and republics may confide their future to moral covenants. Read the cables and study the map—then judge for yourself if that moment is at hand.

Barnum's Ghost Is Green With Envy

Now and then truth tries its level best to pass for fiction. Highwaymen steal the only existing formula for the cure of a fatal disease. Mediums will please note a tinge of envy in Barnum's wraith—that would have been his idea how to advertise a medical sensation.

A Baltimore absconder is caught with grease-painted face, white wig and doddering about with a cane. Many movies evidently deluded the young man as to the gullibility of detectives. He finds them far shrewder than reported.

A London hospital claims satisfactory results in the treatment of paralysis with malaria germs. One evil is supposed to destroy another. Some years ago West Indians imported the mongoose to rid their plantations of rats and snakes. Since then they've vainly sought something to destroy the mongoose. What becomes of the malaria bugs?

Many a Mickle Makes a Muckle

Progress is halted by trifles oftener than mountains. A thousand "almost miracles" are kept infeasible by single missing parts.

The welding of copper to porcelain represents five years of continuous experiment. That doesn't sound as if it should be difficult, yet the problem has probably intrigued as many brains as an obstacle in physics.

The process saves untold millions. If patentable, the inventor will make more money than a subway builder or a bridge designer.

To Help Mother

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a girl of seventeen and I am asking if you can help me help my mother. She has worked and slaved ever since I was seven and my sister four to give us an education, and now she is all worn out. I am going to work and am attending a business school evenings, but I can't earn enough to help much. I want her to have enough to wear so she can go out. She needs a street dress or suit, a hat, suitable for a middle-aged woman, shoes, size 7 or 7½, and if anyone has some bungalow aprons or house dresses she can patch them up, as she is a lovely seamstress. She hasn't been able to go to church in two years and has worn her Winter coat since 1918. She is tall and stout, but 46.

Box of Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you kindly send me the address of a girl about eight or nine years of age? I have a box of clothes that would fit her and also a few women's clothes—about 44 size. Your work is splendid, and we are all glad to help.

M. J.

Thank you. You will be sent the address of Mrs. R. L., who needs the woman's clothing, and of Mrs. M. M., who has a girl eight.
